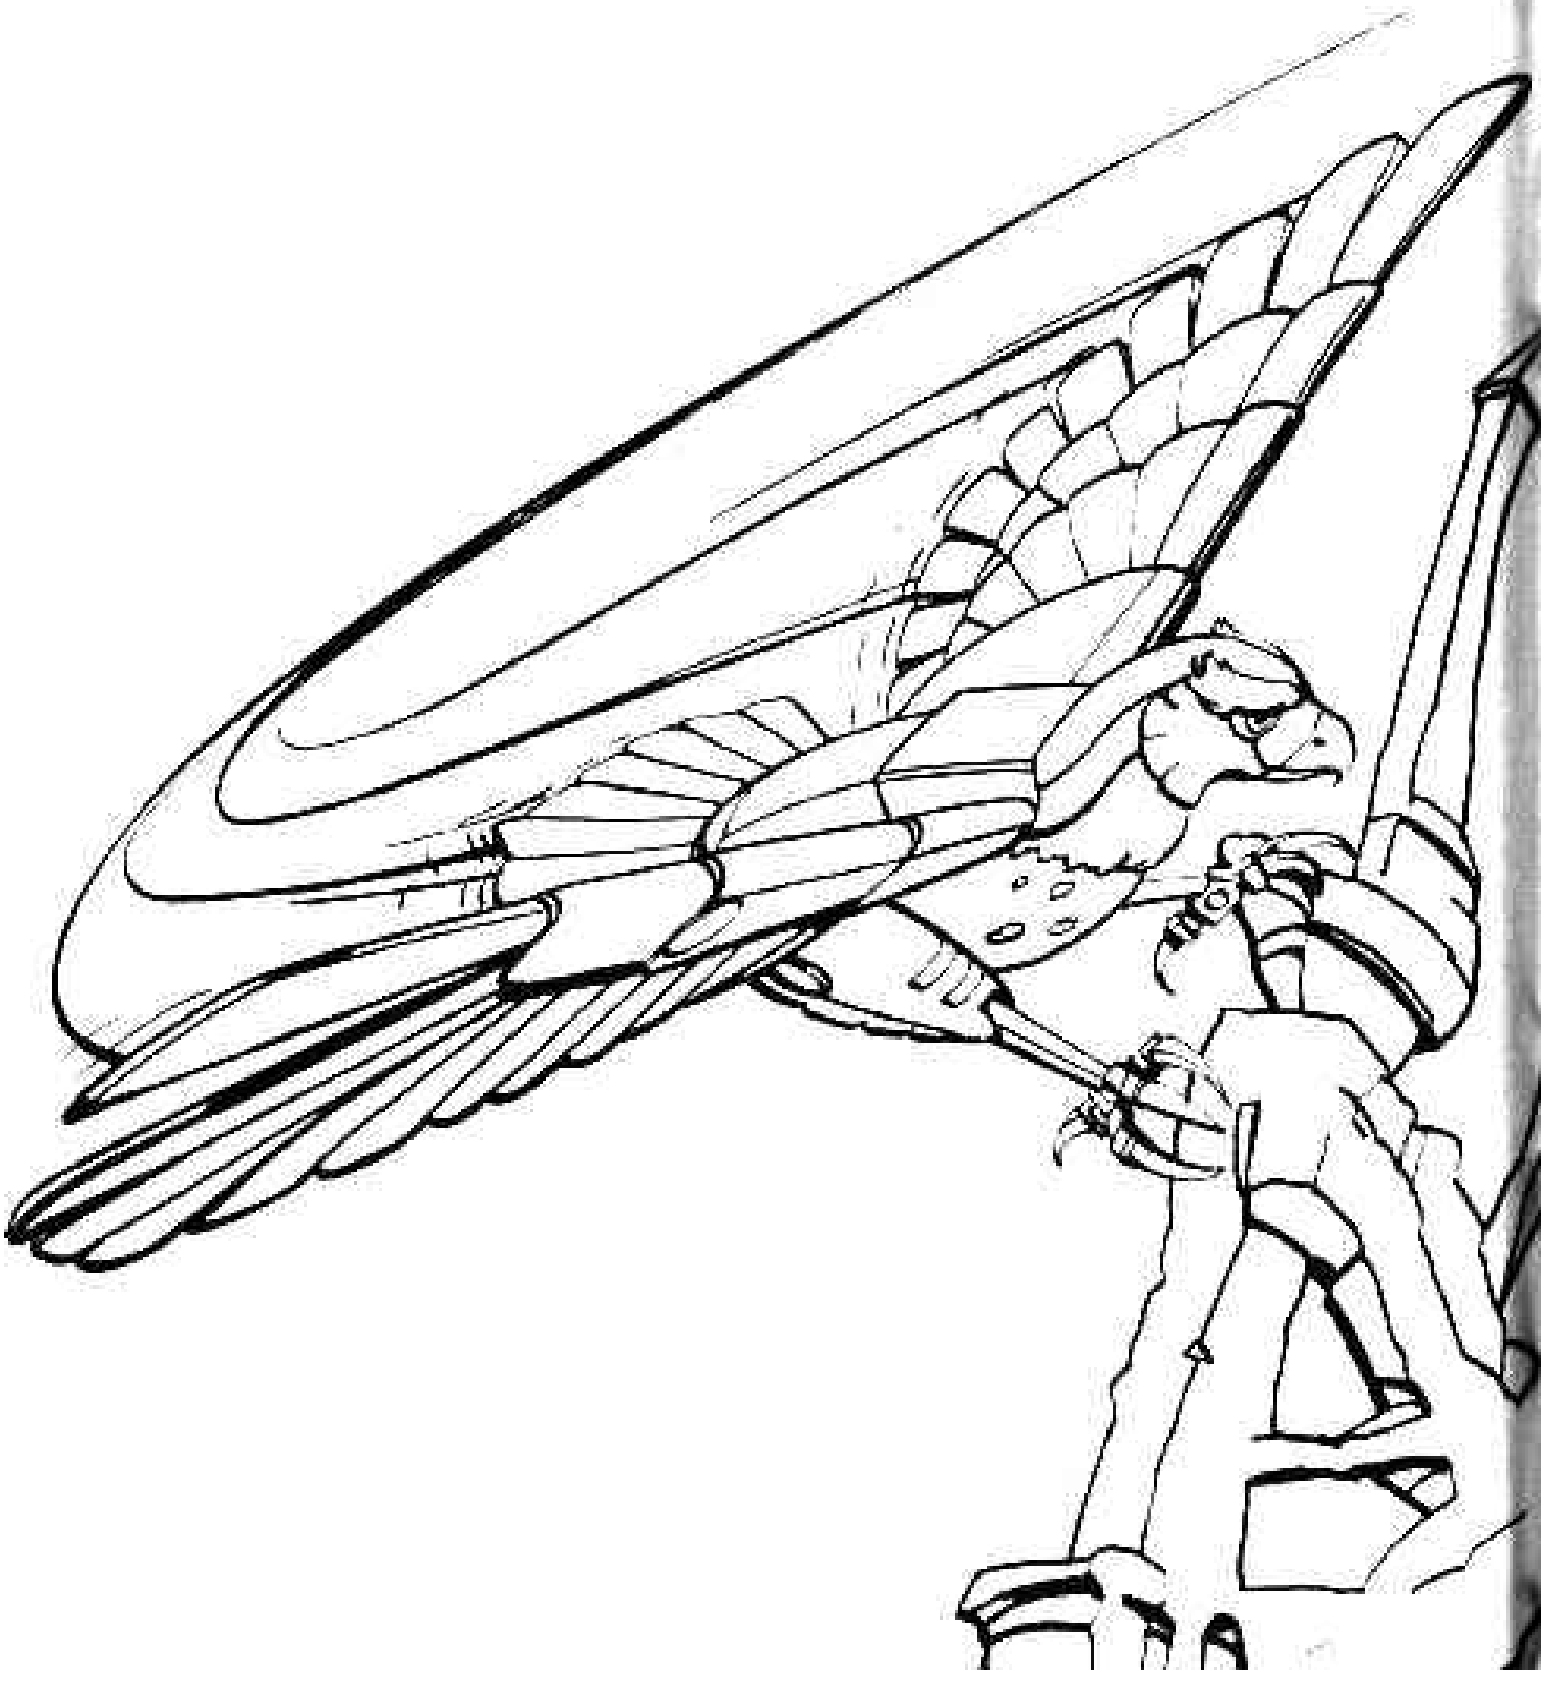
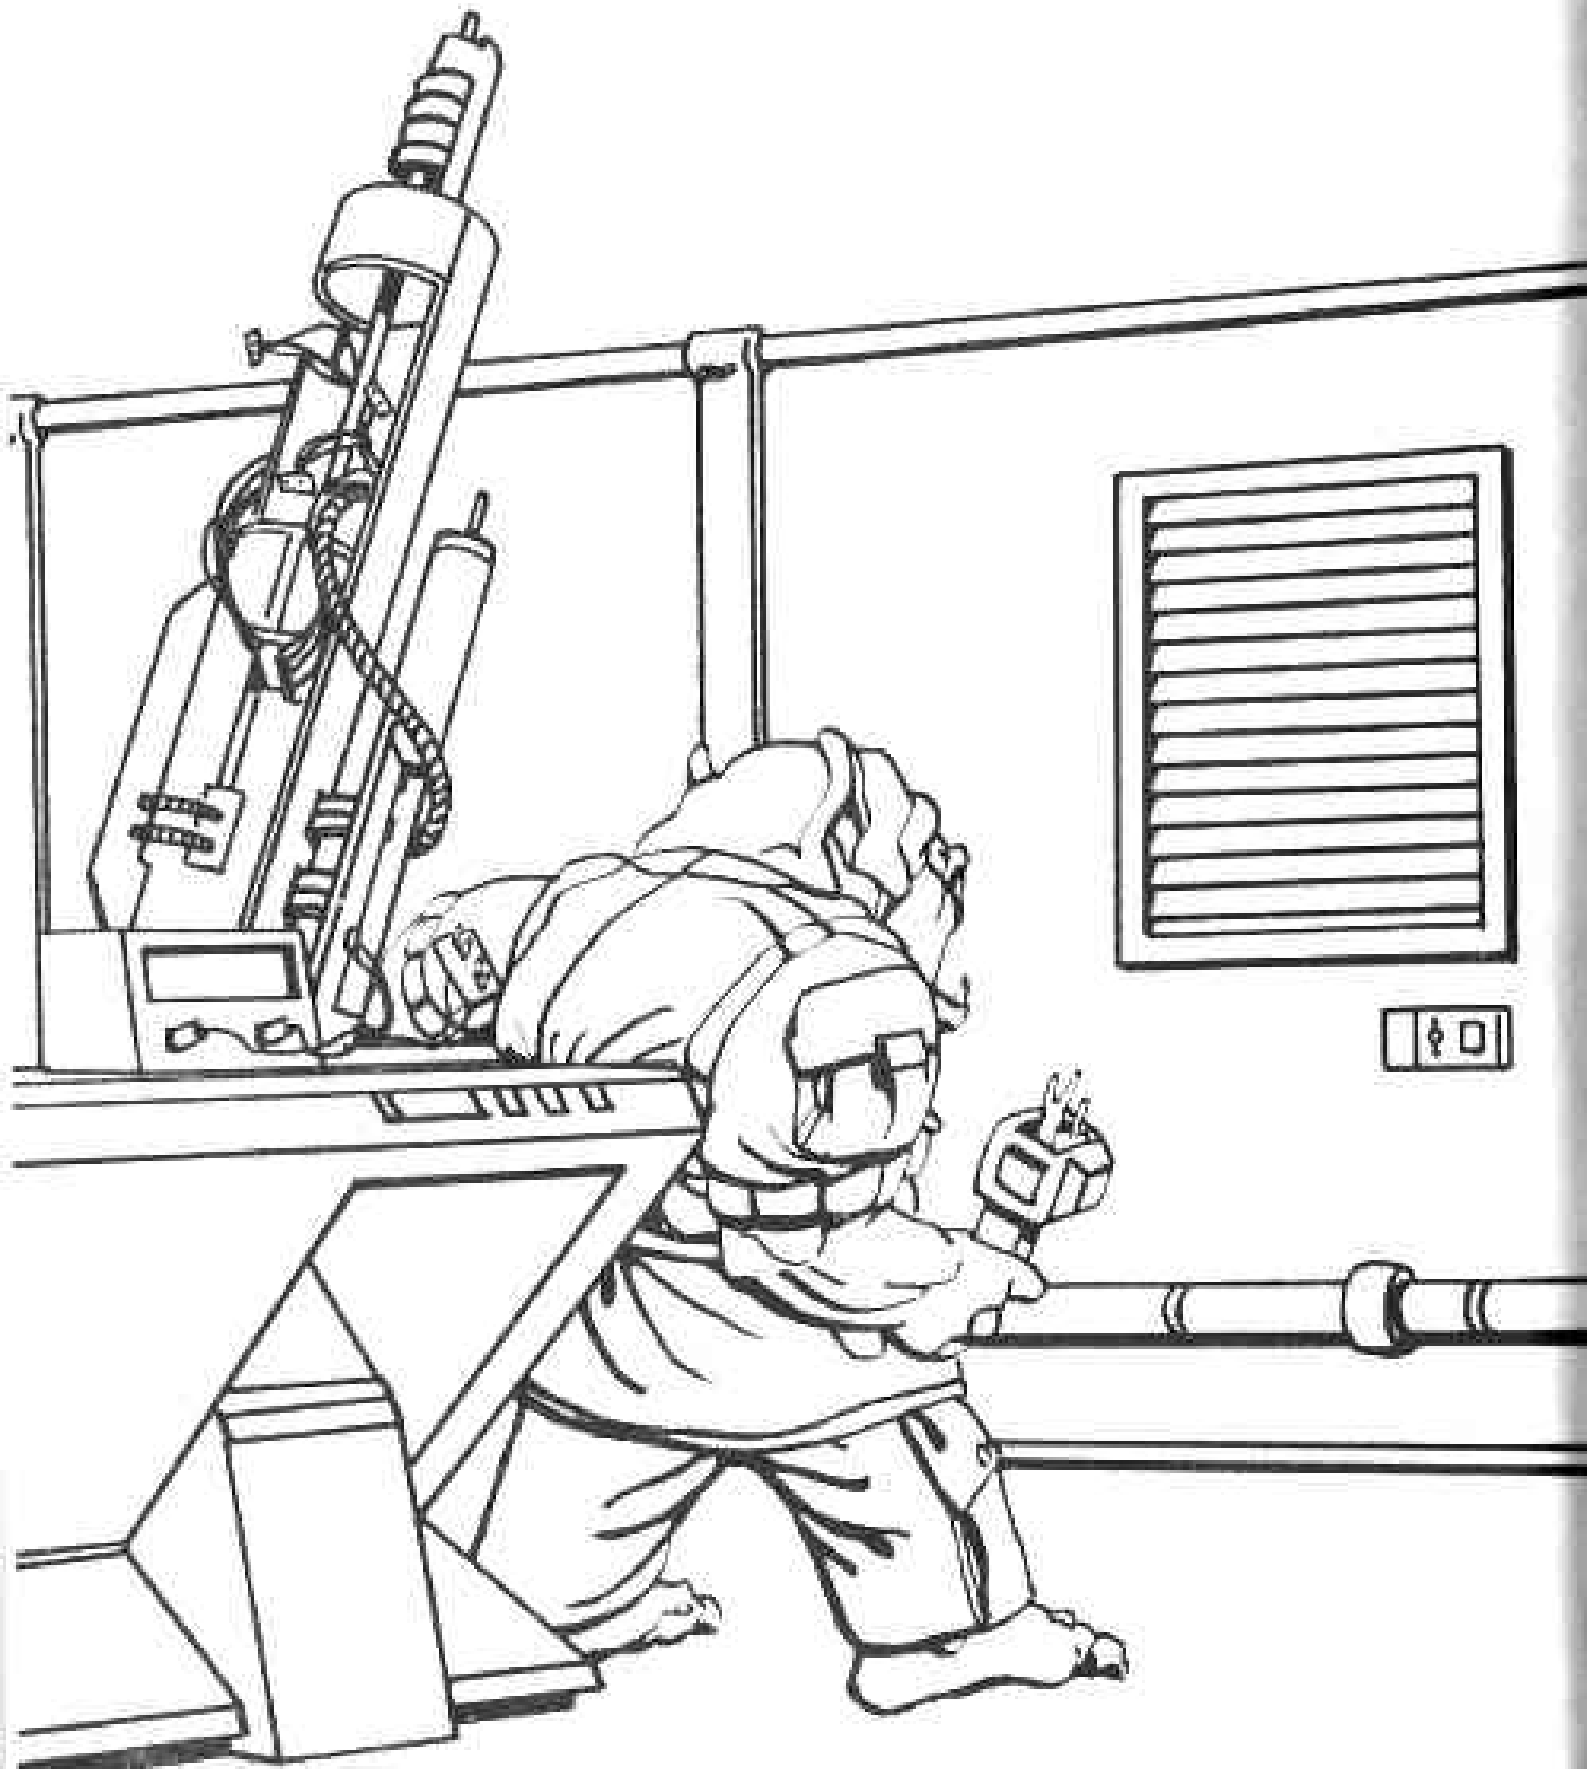
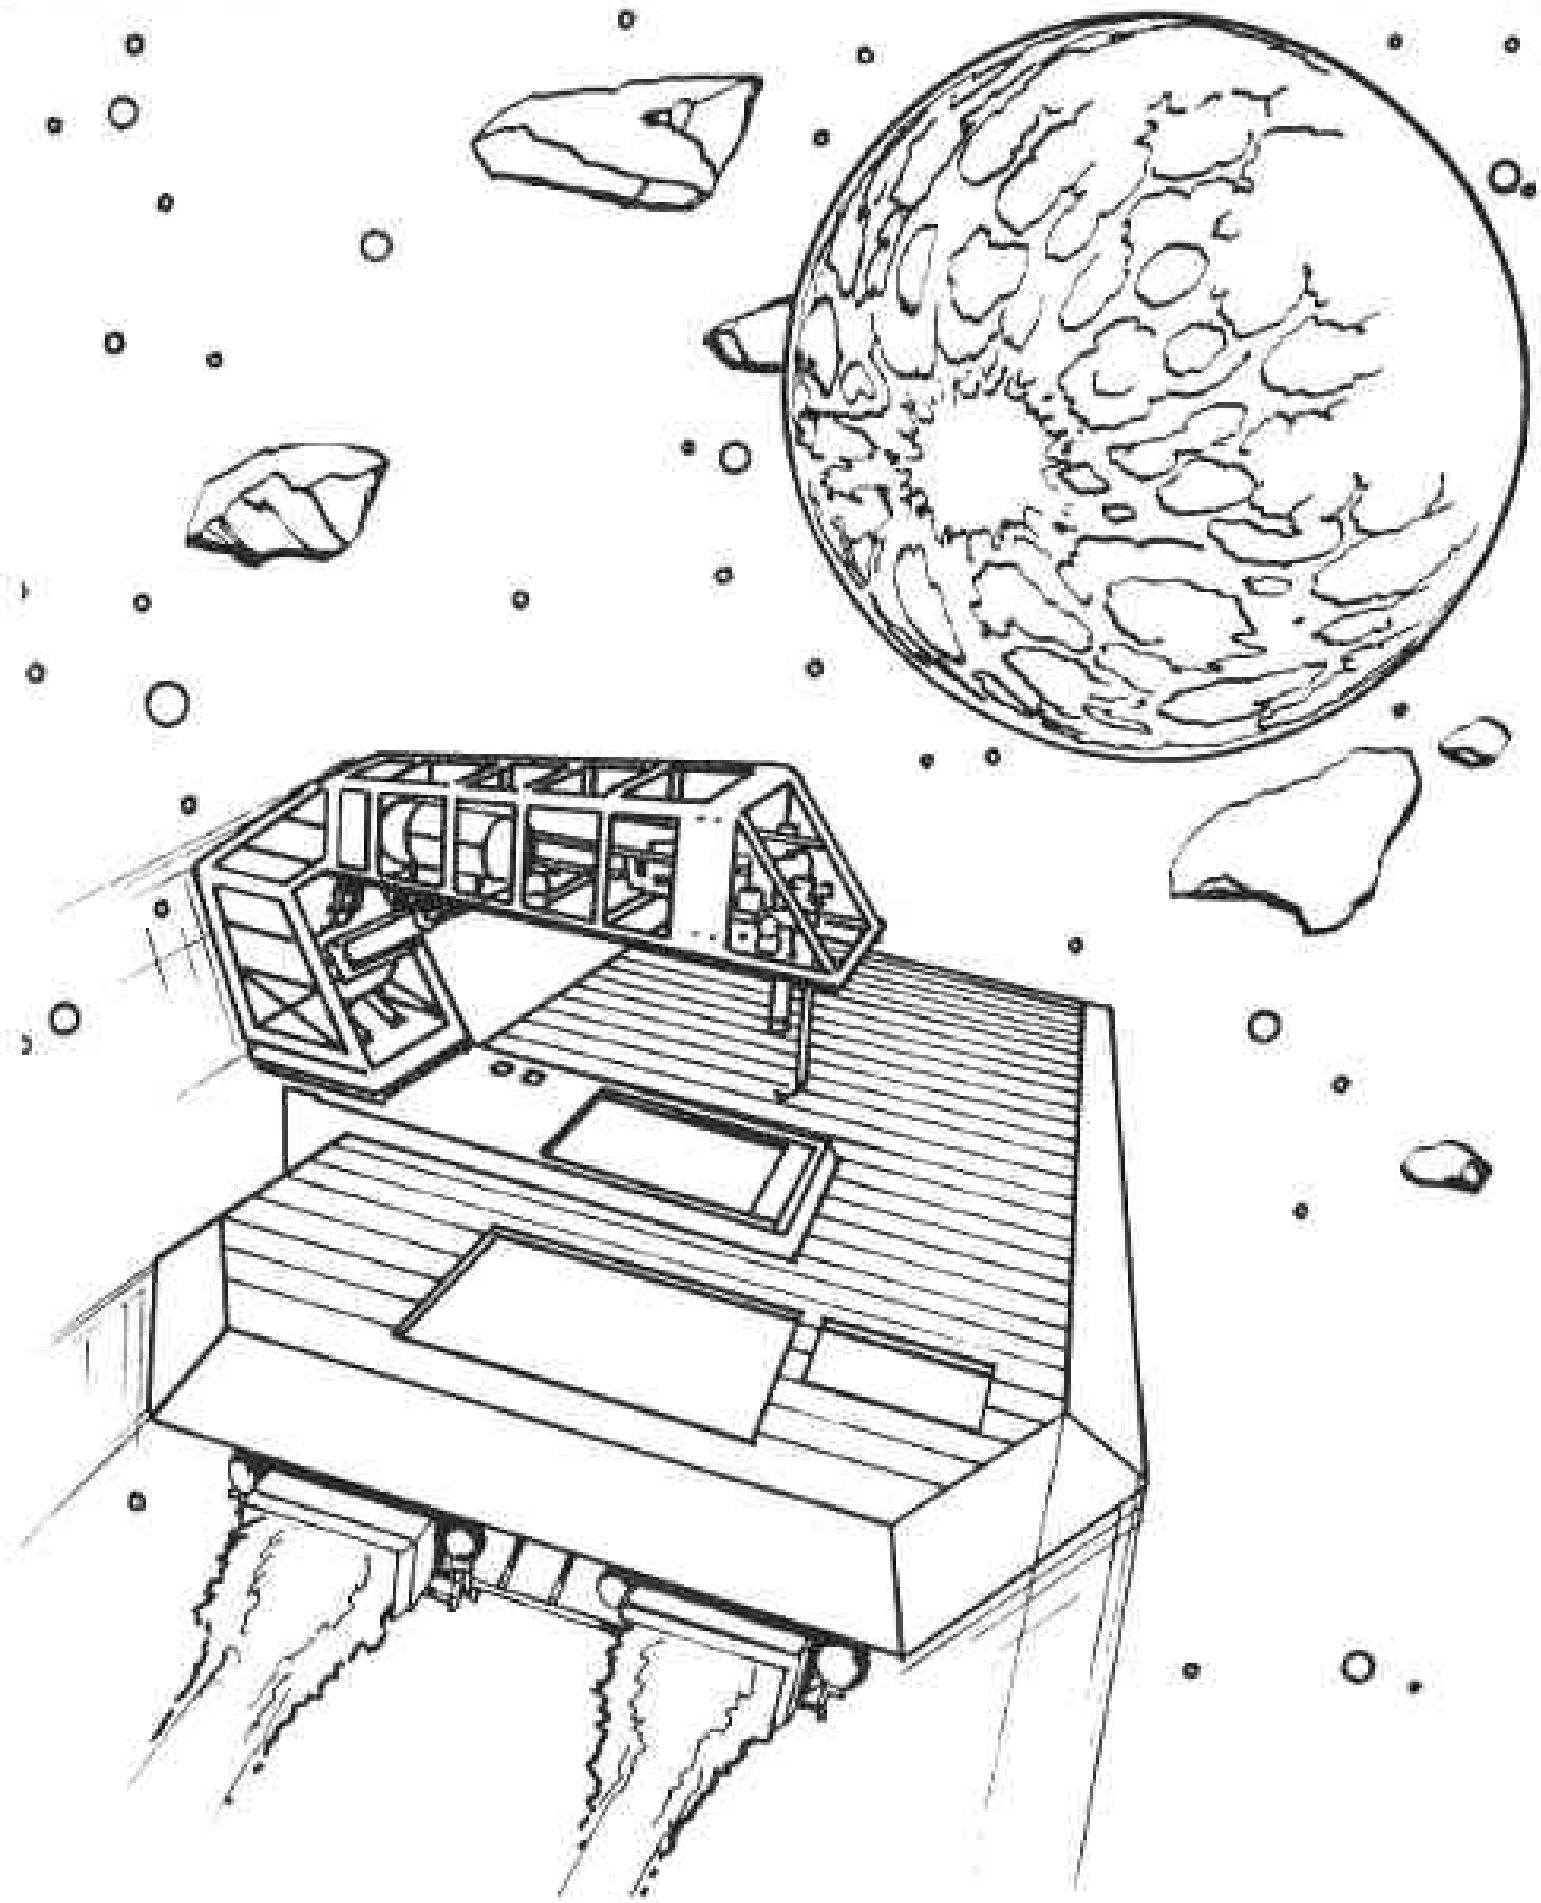
Tally-Hawk, the SilverHawks' mascot, kept a constant watch on the evil Mon-Star and his mob.



Inside the mob's fortress, Hardware, the mechanic, received a visit from an angry Mon-Star. Yes-Man, Mon-Star's sidekick, looked on from the shadows.



"Stop that nosy bird...or else!" Mon-Star ordered Hardware.



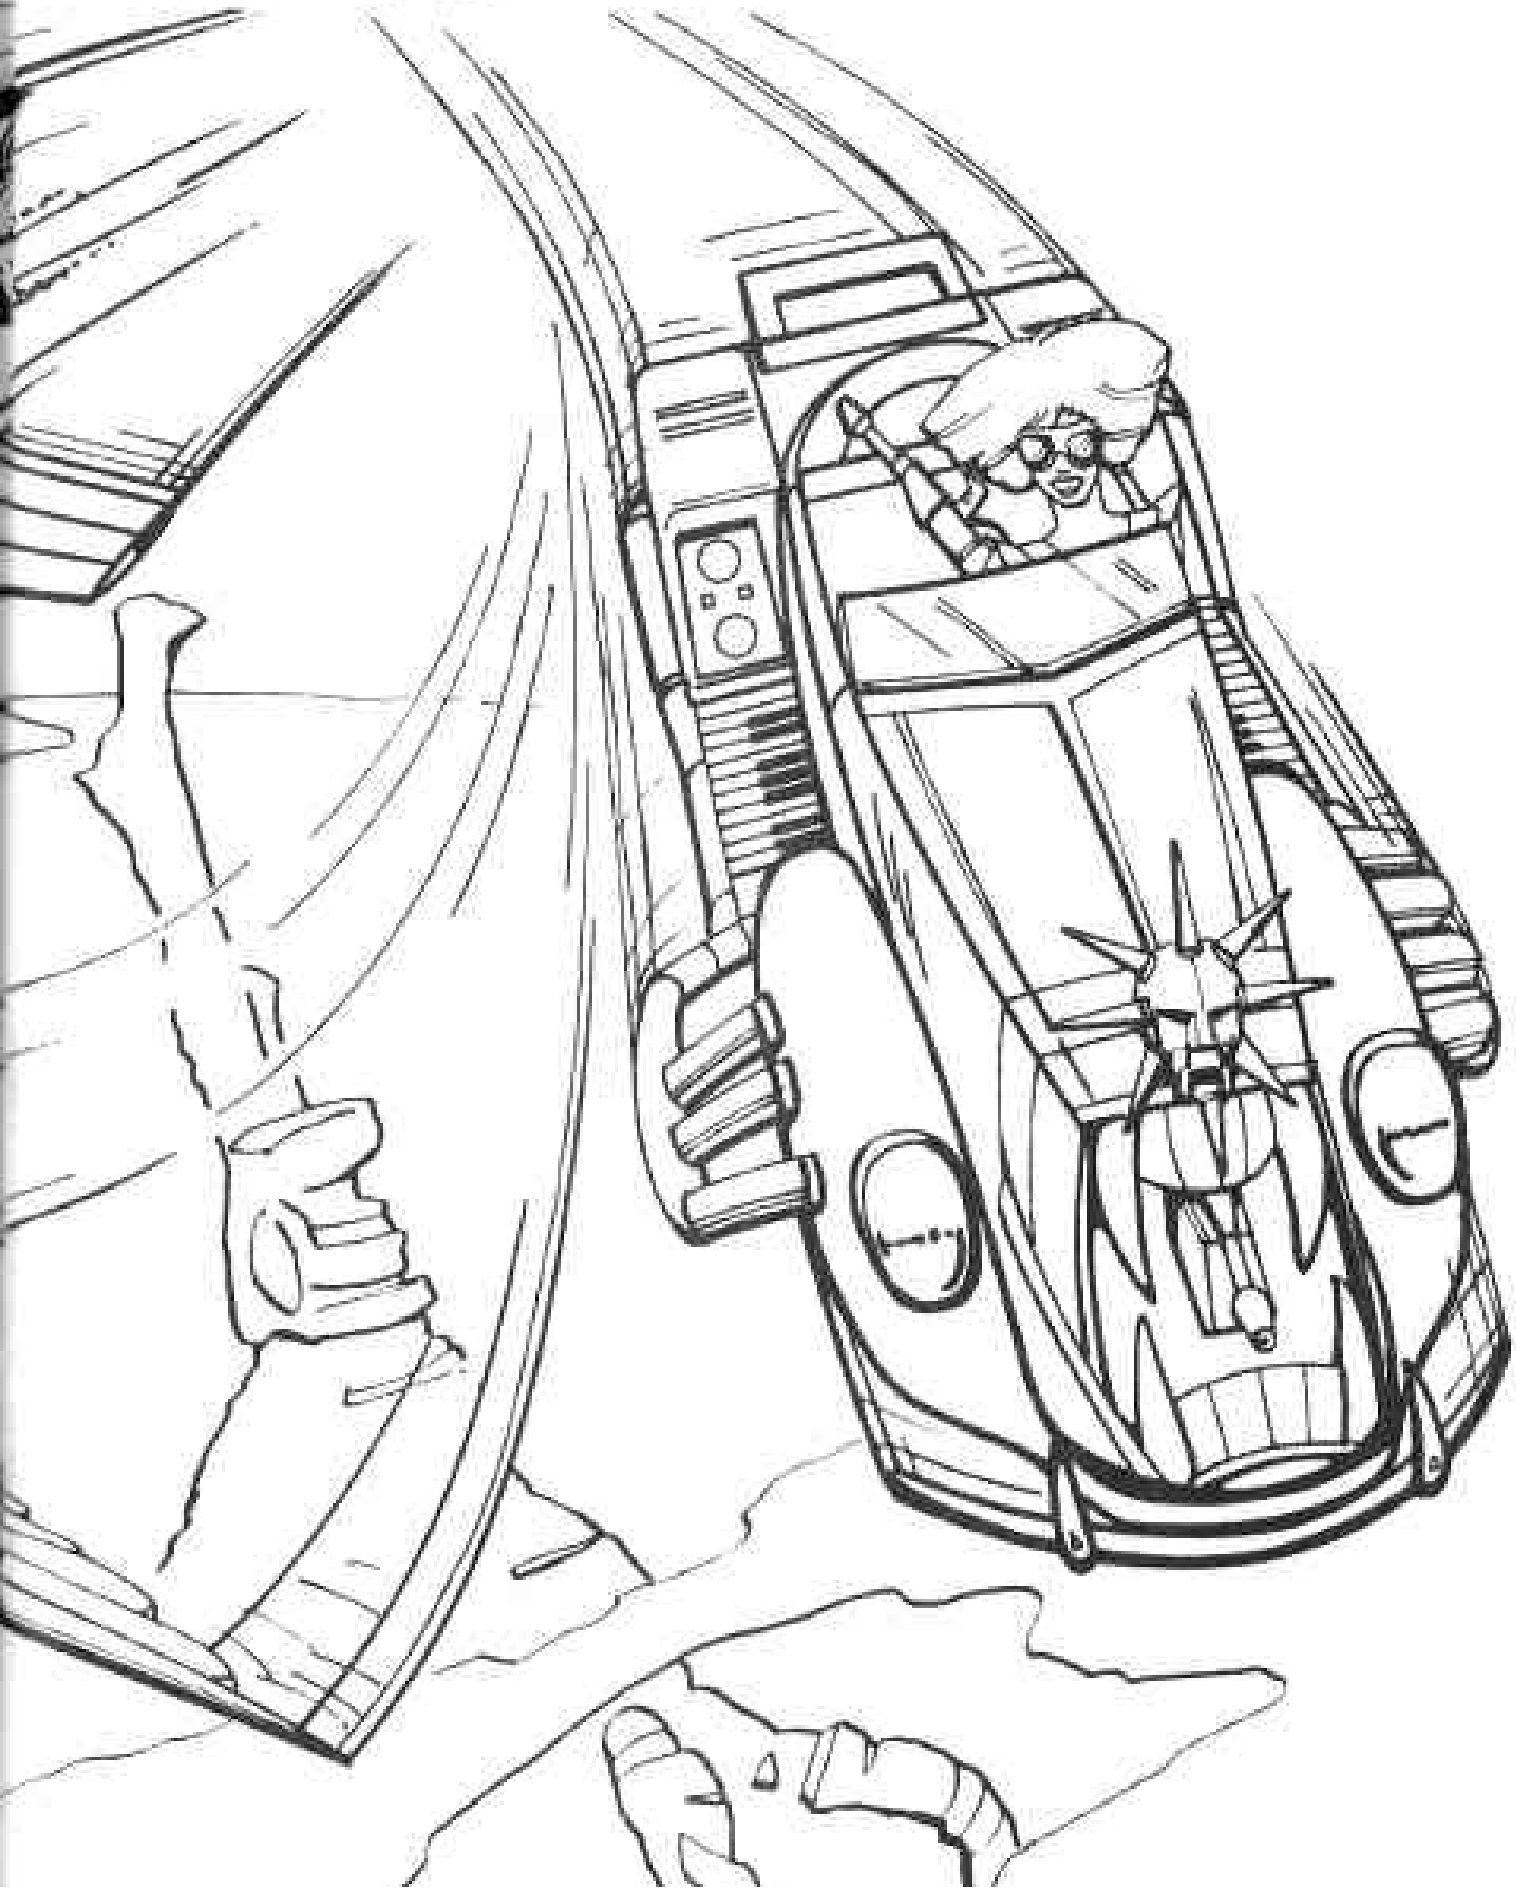
Later that day a space freighter made a special delivery to the mob's fortress, deep in the heart of the Brim-Star.

A Sky-Shadow—one of the most ferocious beasts in the universe.

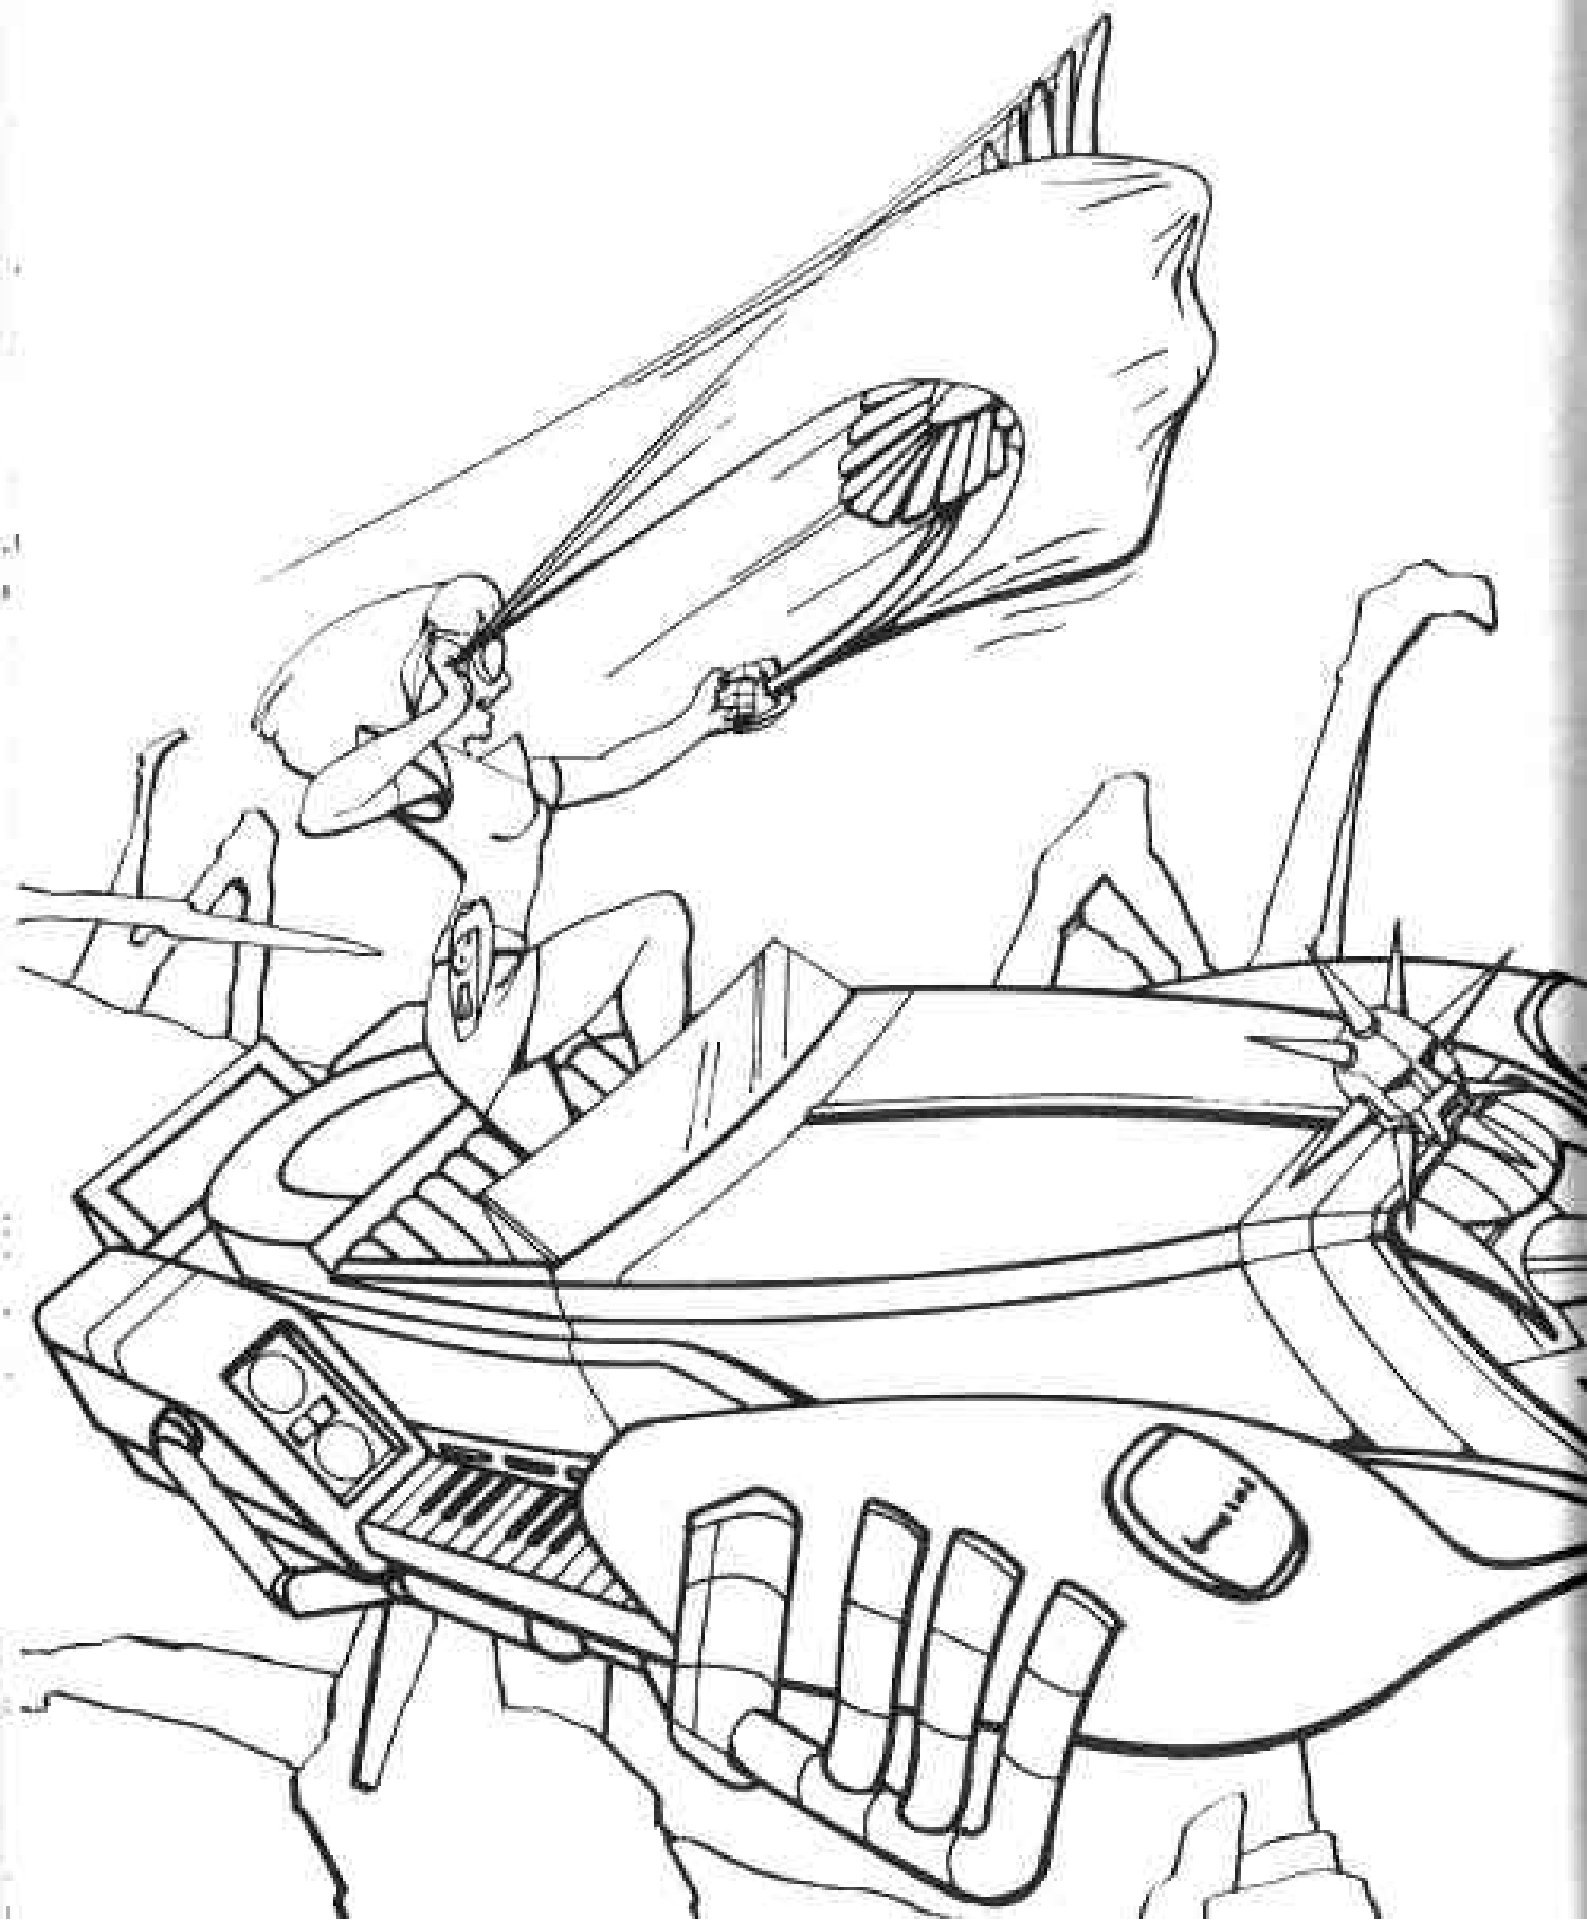
"It's...it's beautiful!" said Mon-Star with a gasp.

When Tally-Hawk went in for a closer look, Yes-Man and Hardware almost turned him into hawk stew.

Tally-Hawk flew away, but Windhammer and Hardware in the Zoomer and Melodia in the Limbo Limo were hot on his tailfeathers.



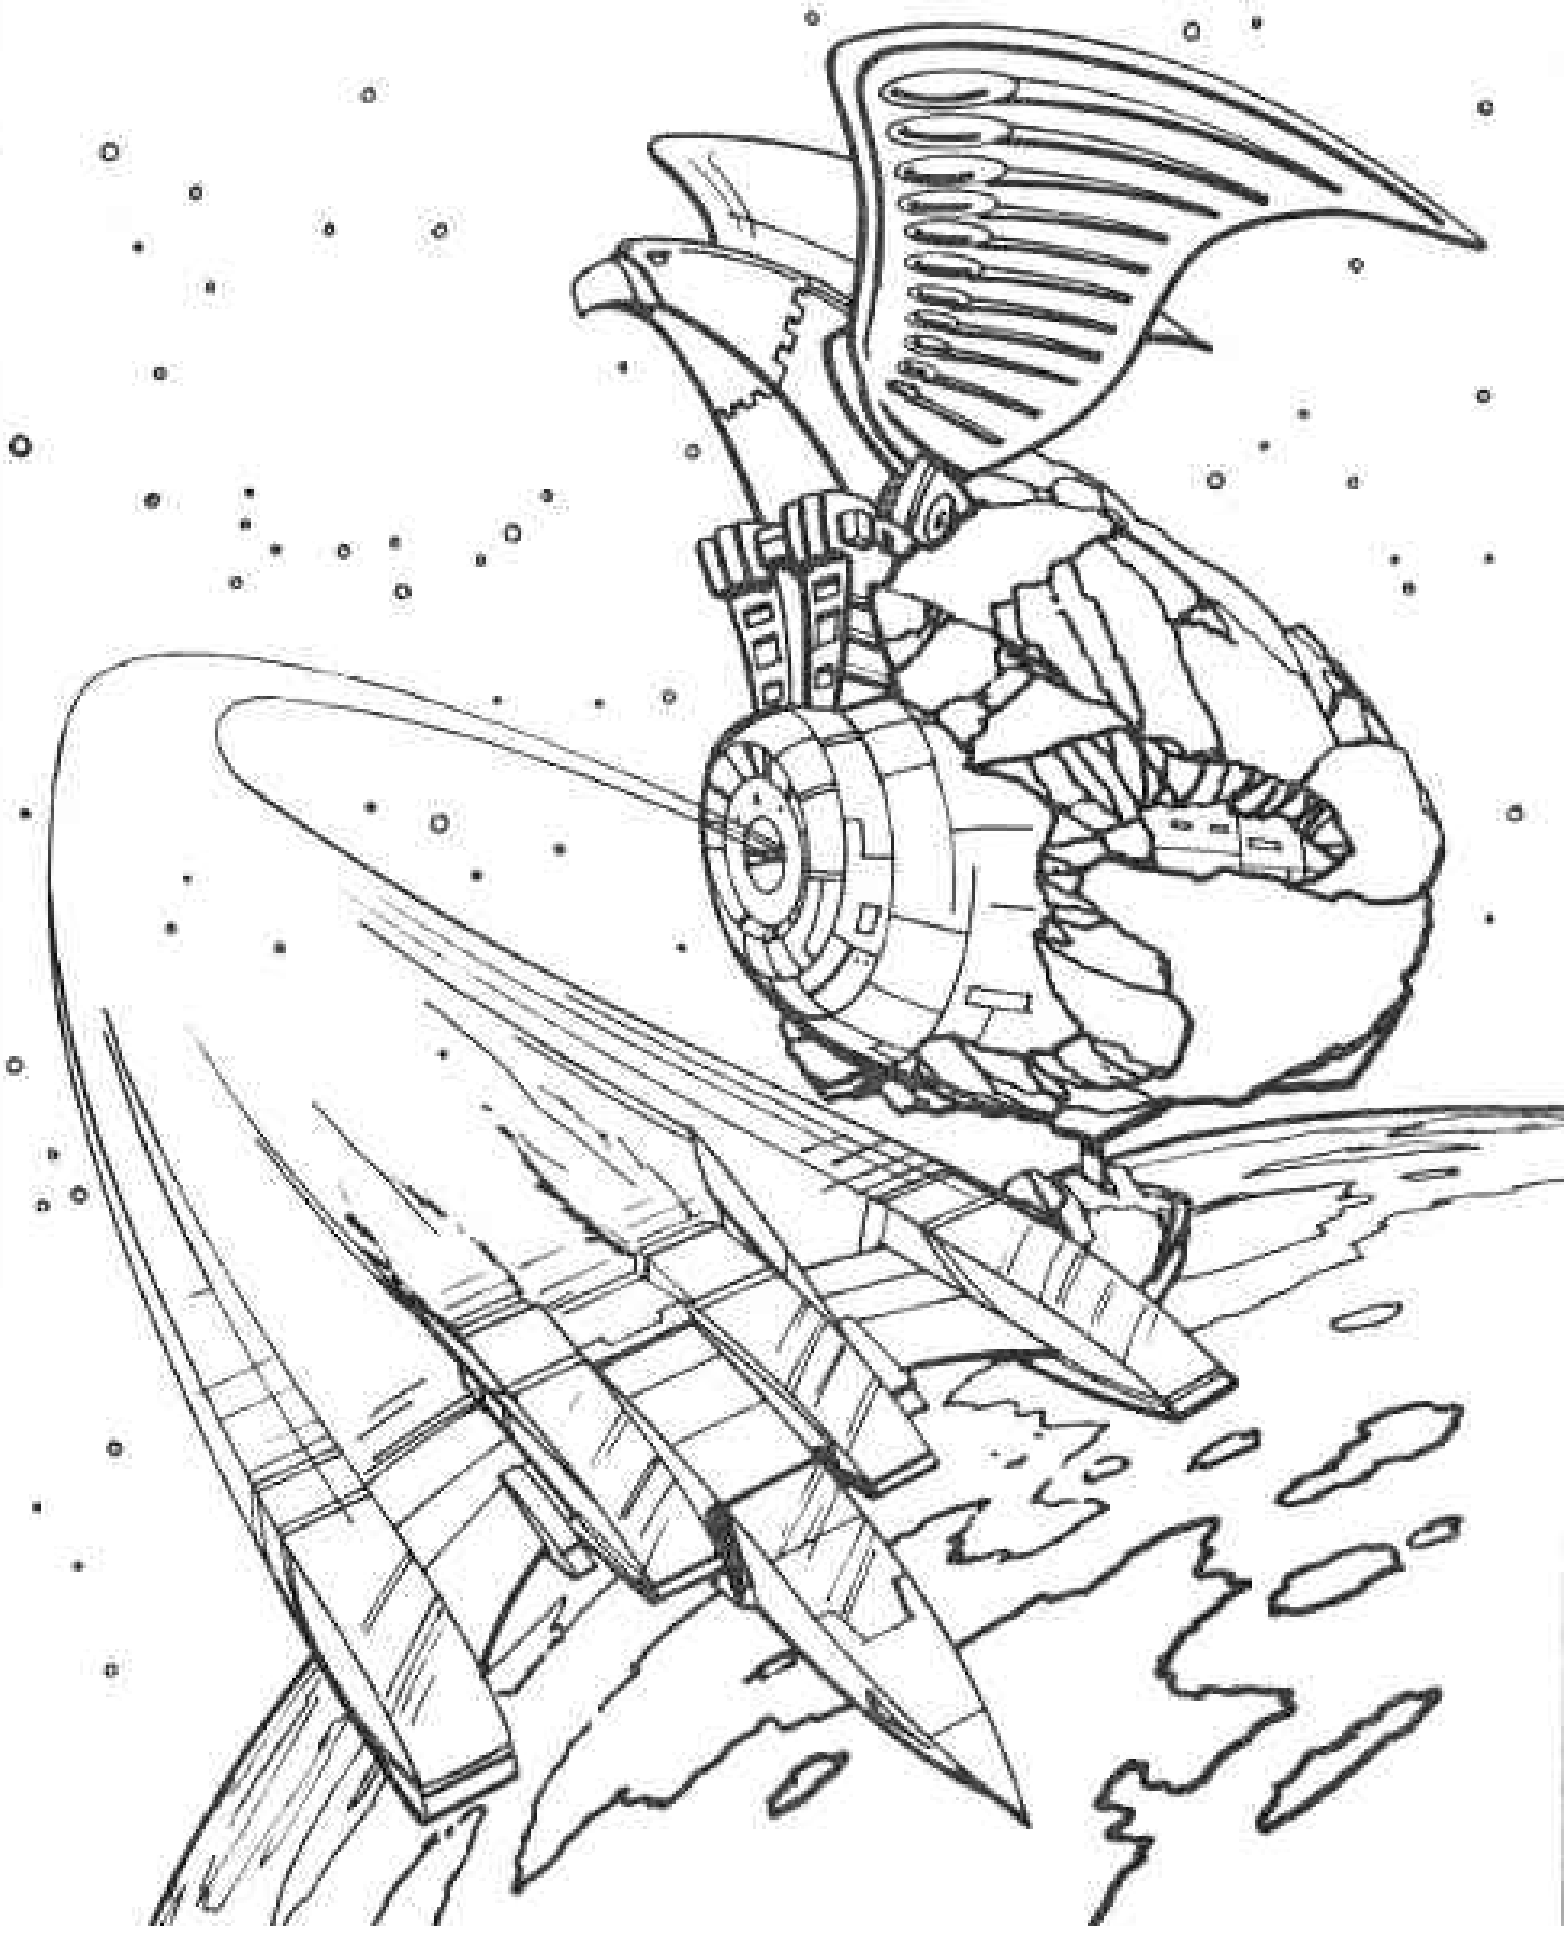
"Let's go to the net, Tally-Hawk!" cried Melodia.



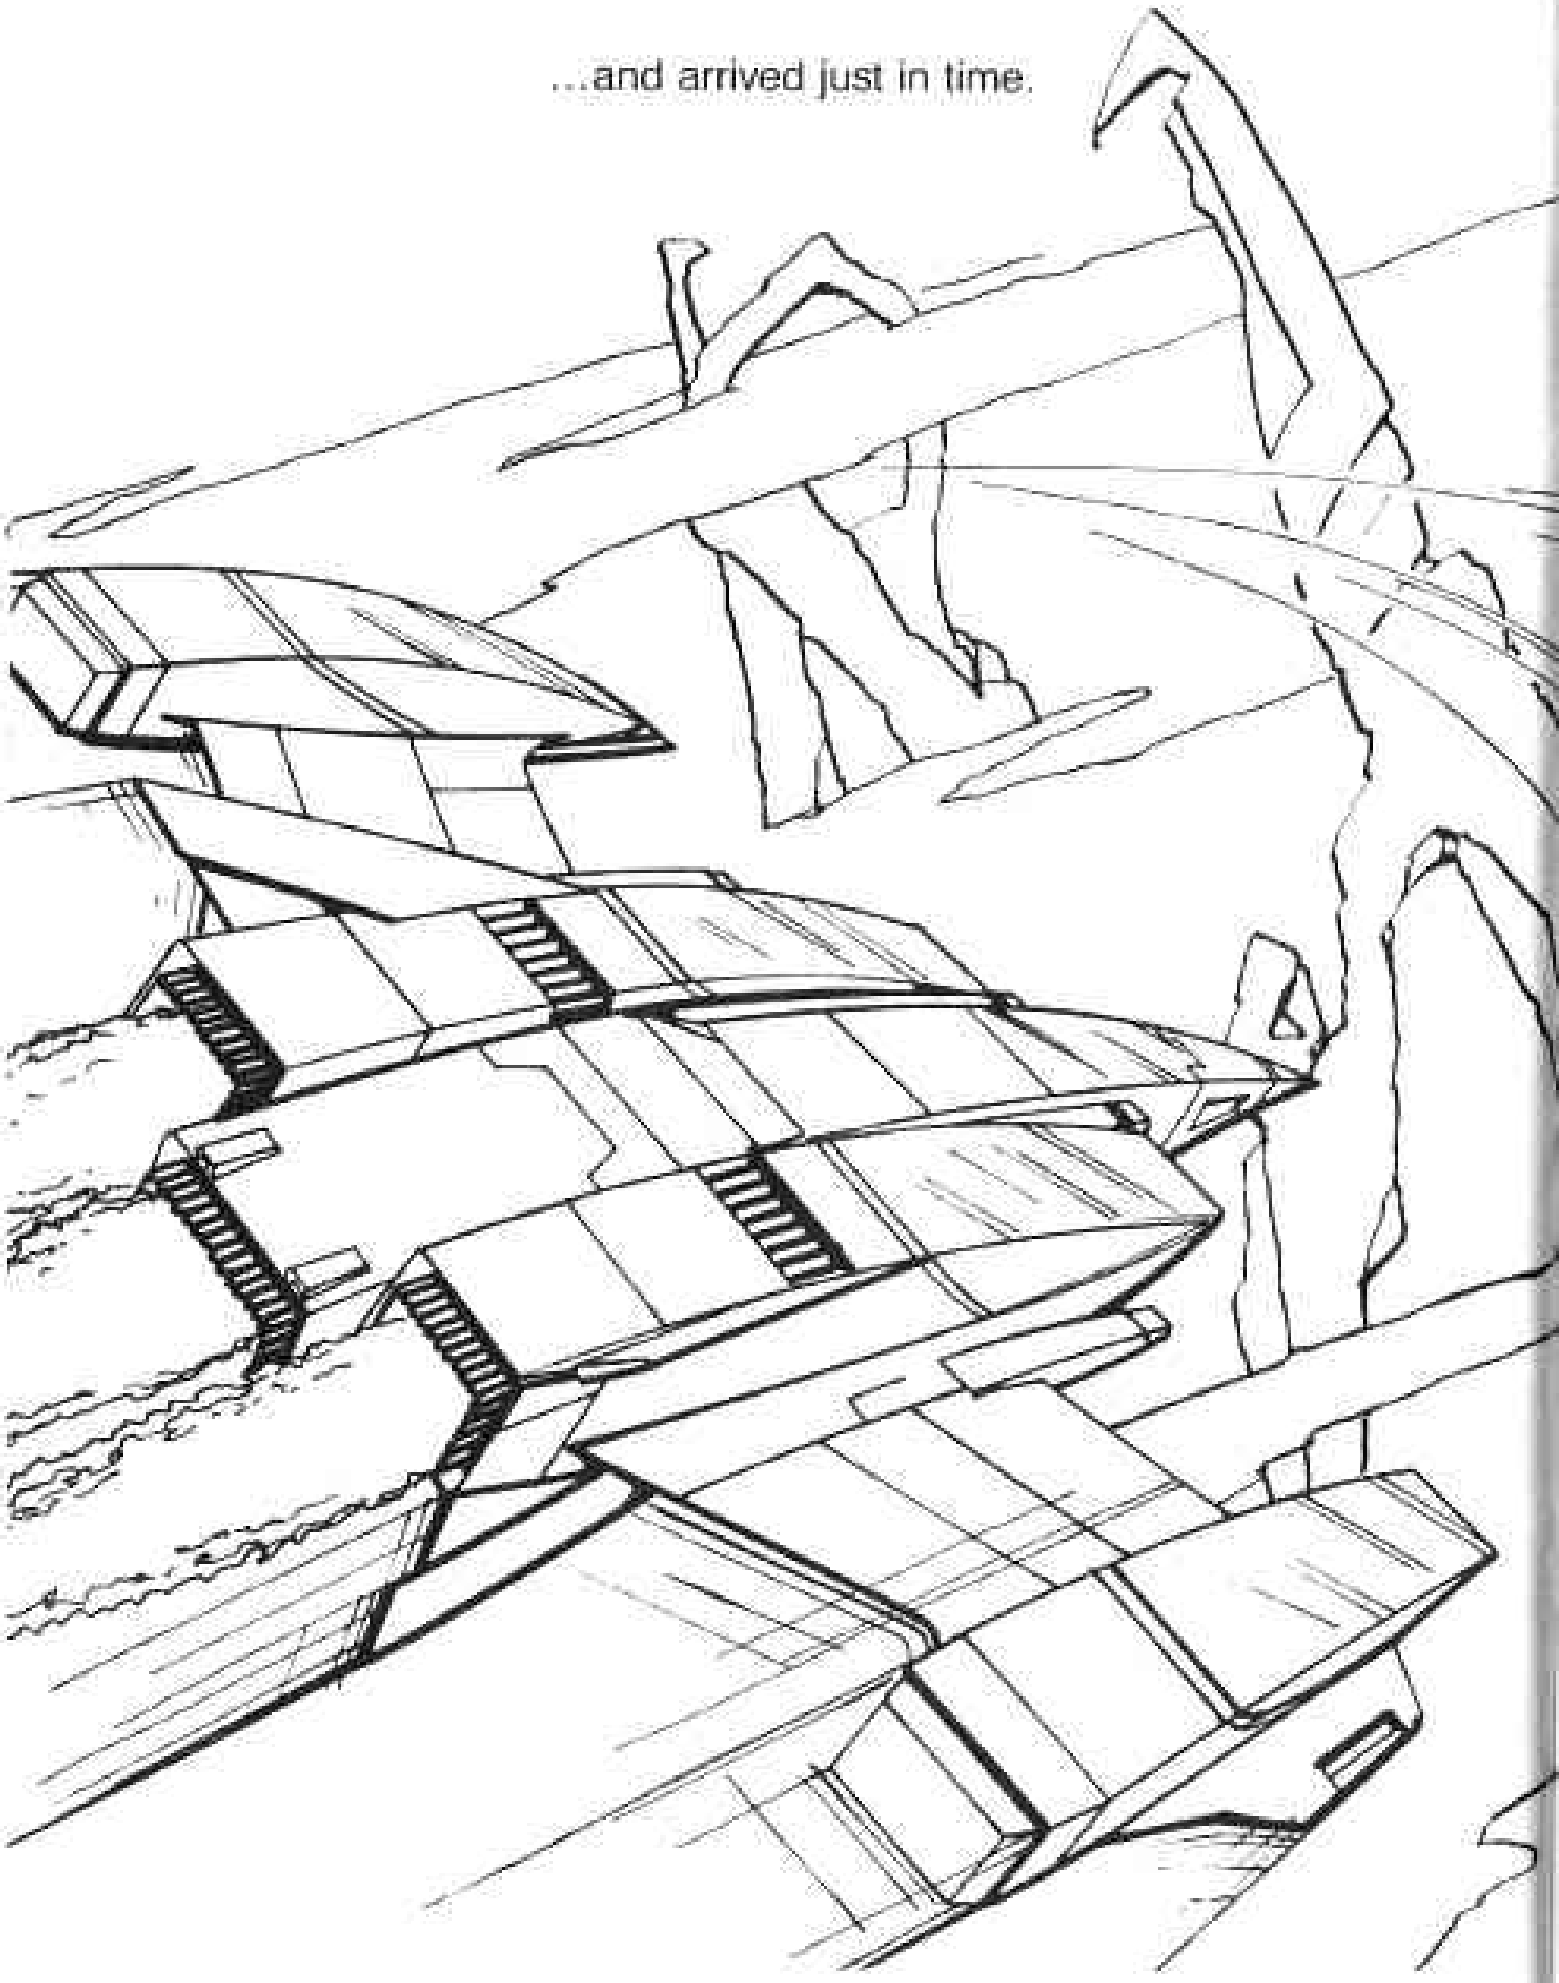
Rrrrip! Tally-Hawk escaped and sent out a desperate cry for help.

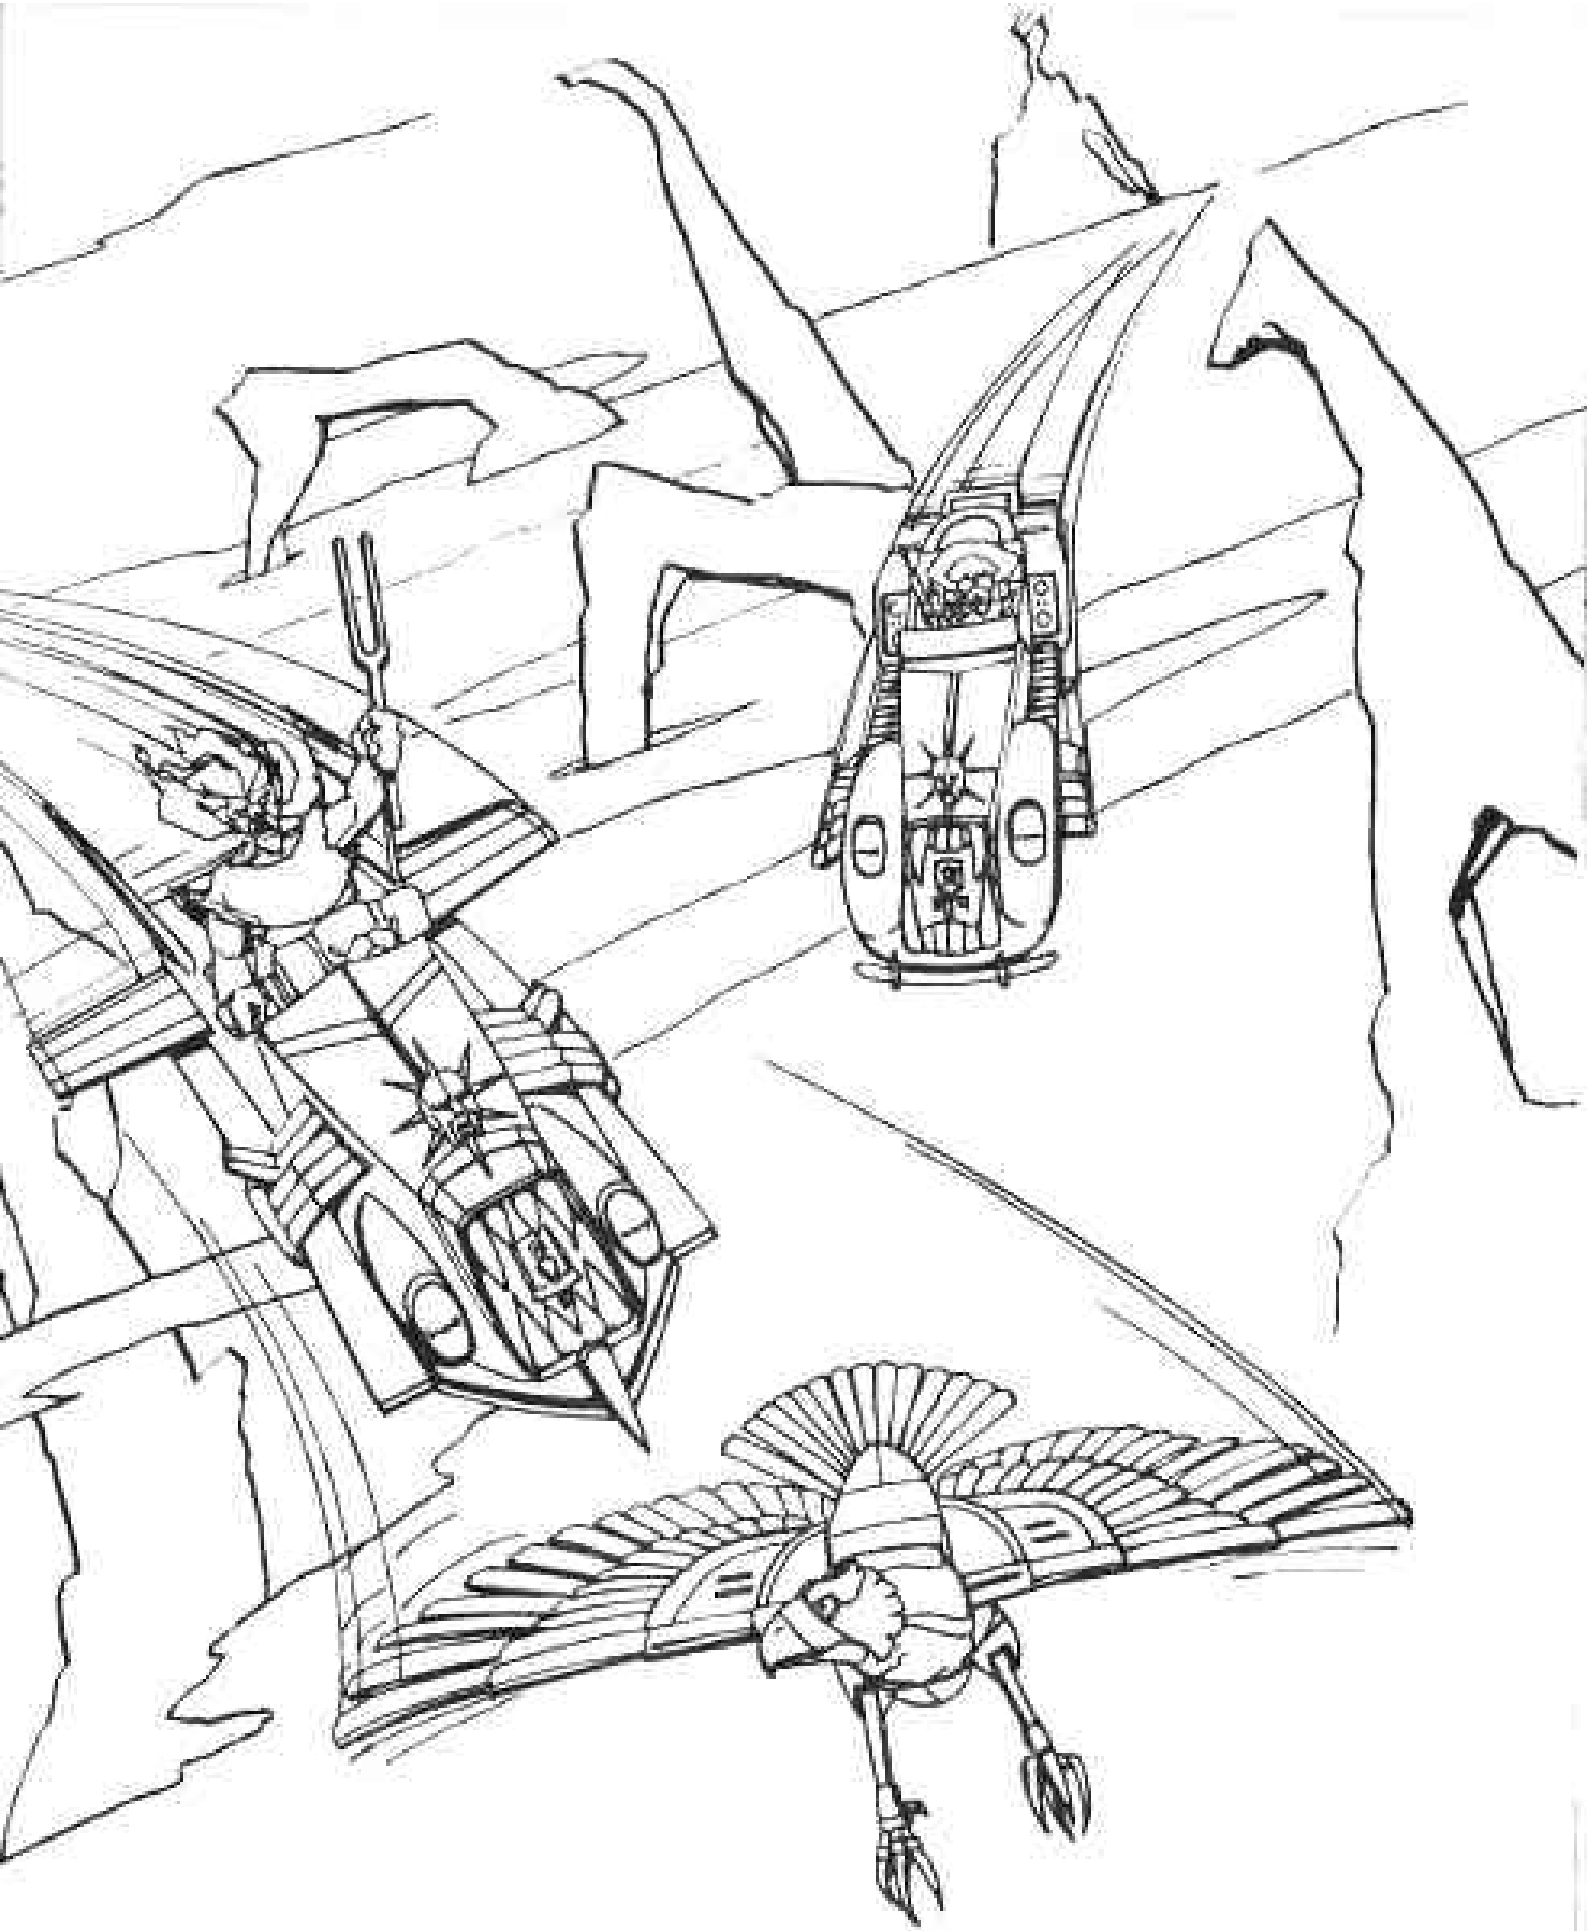
Stargazer, the SilverHawks' commander, received the message.

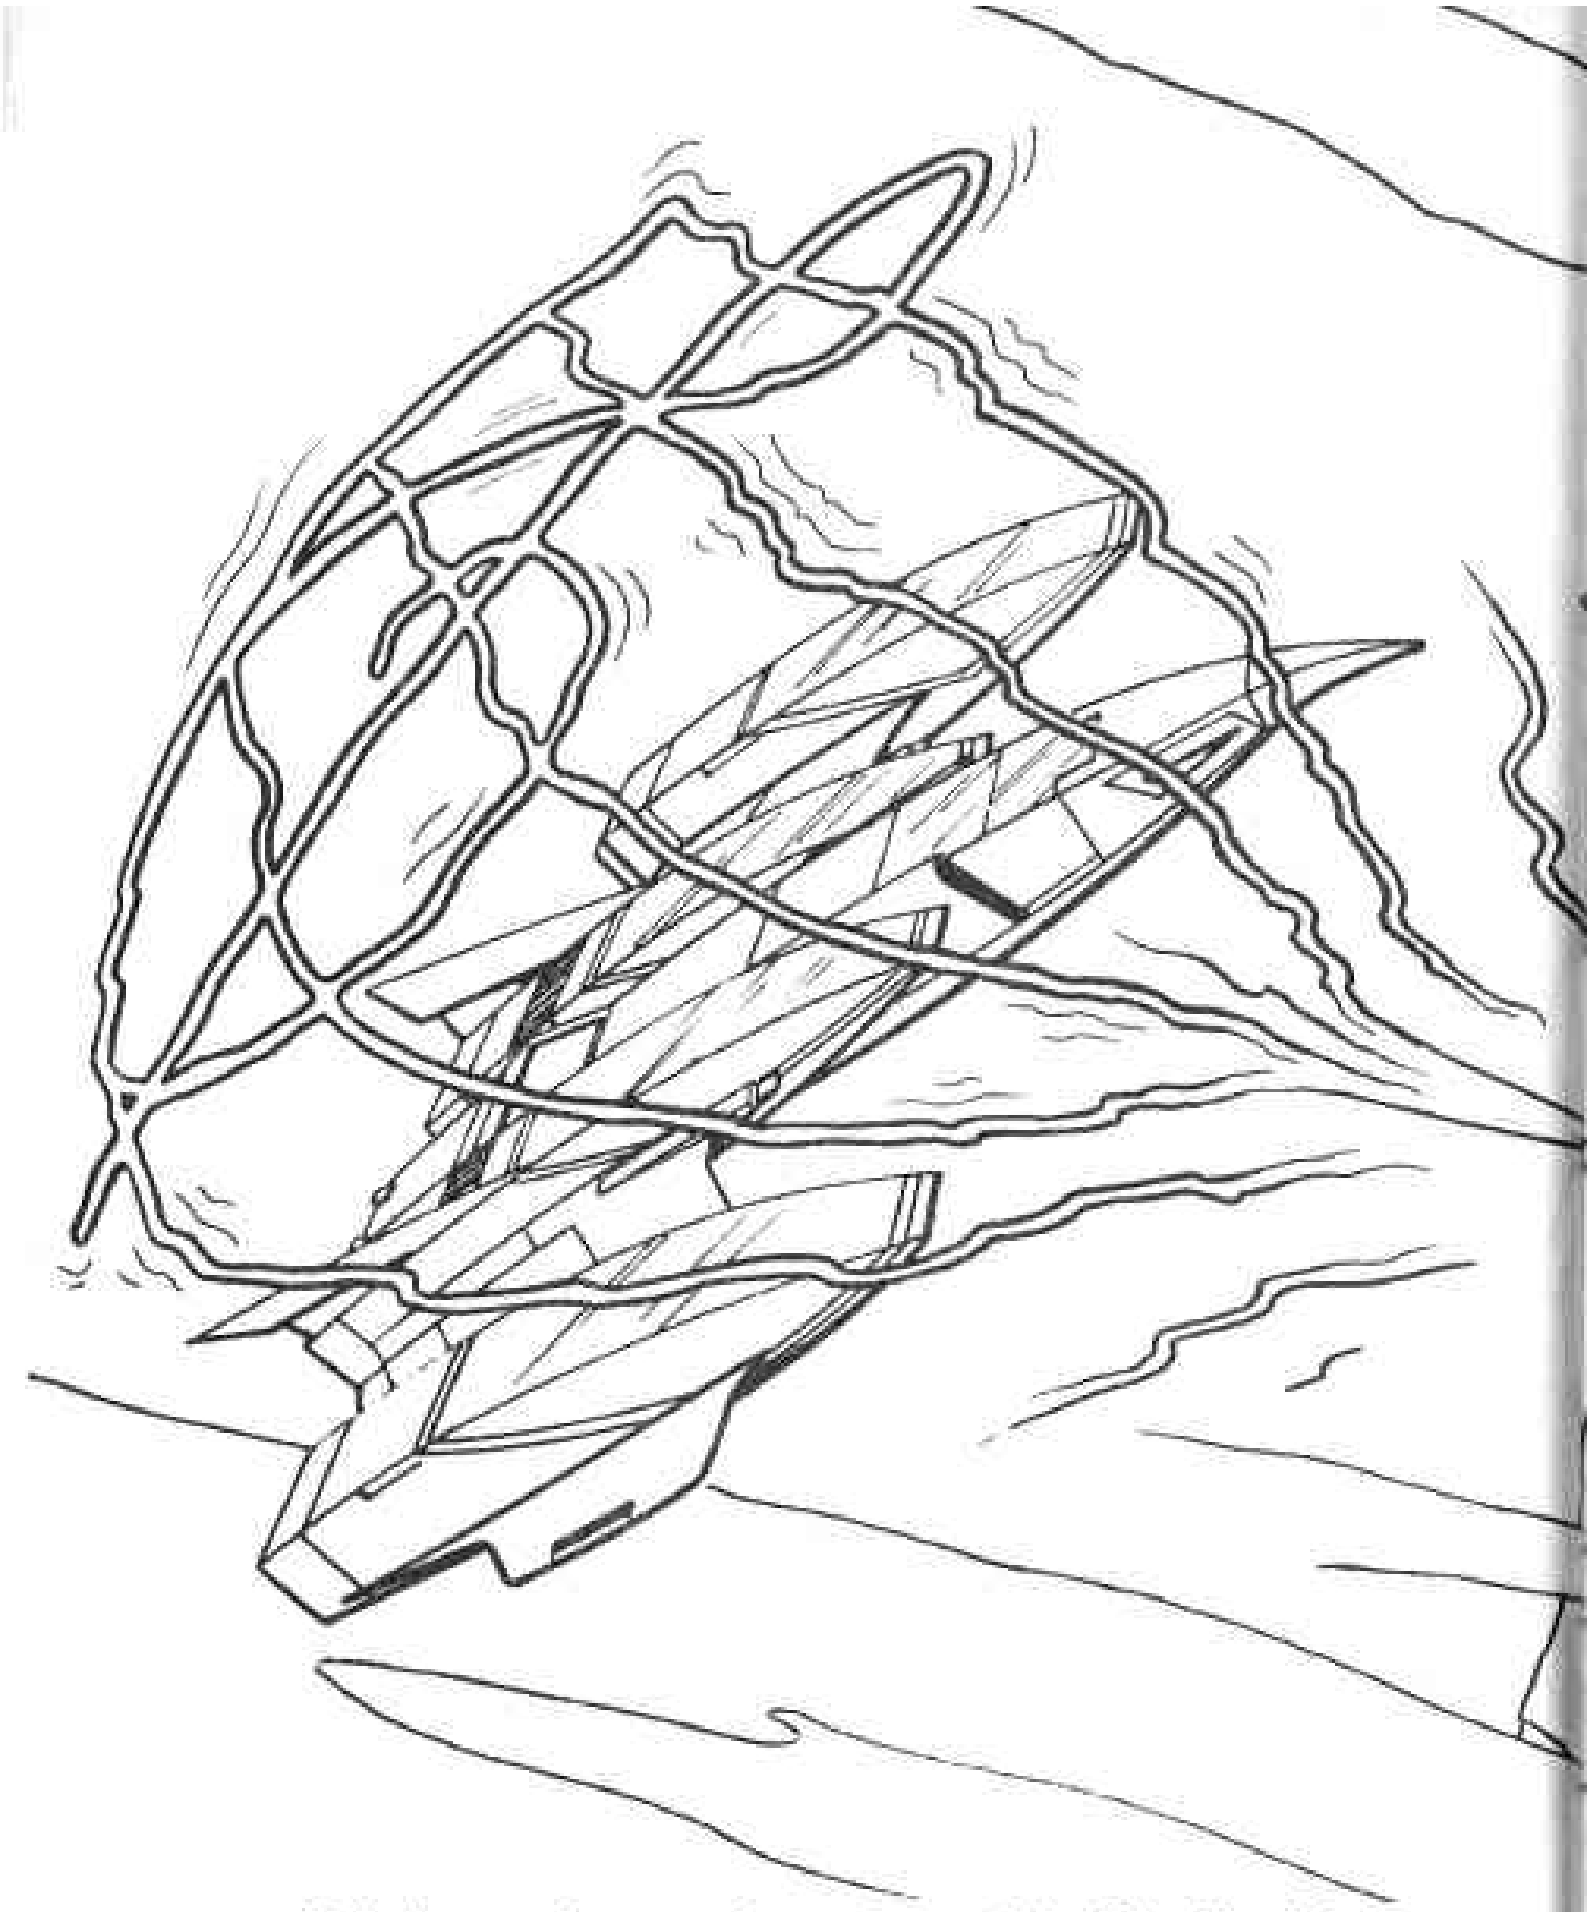
The SilverHawks set out to rescue Tally-Hawk...



...and arrived just in time.

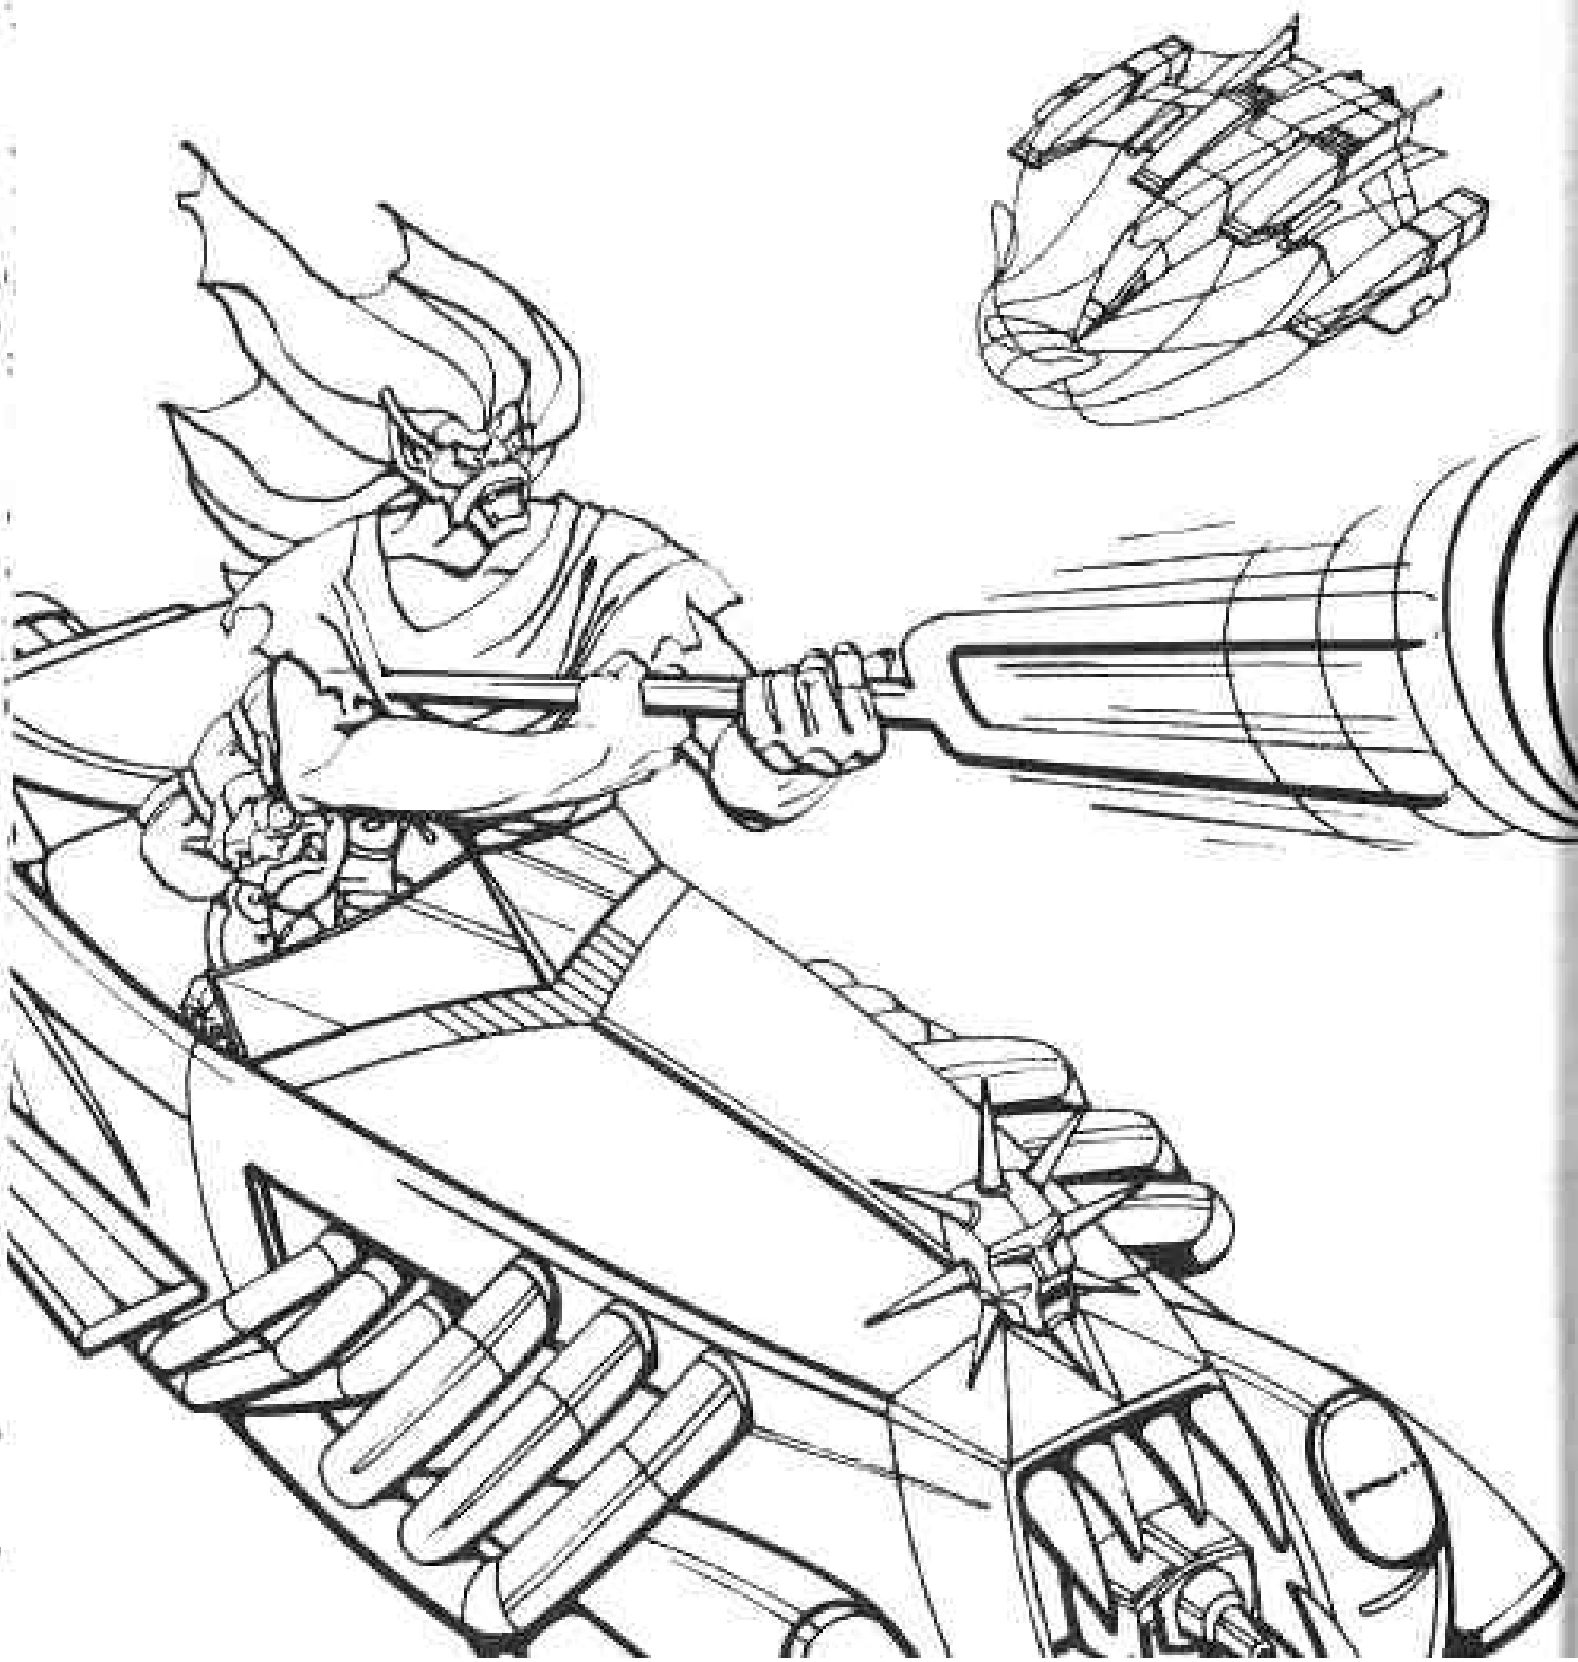


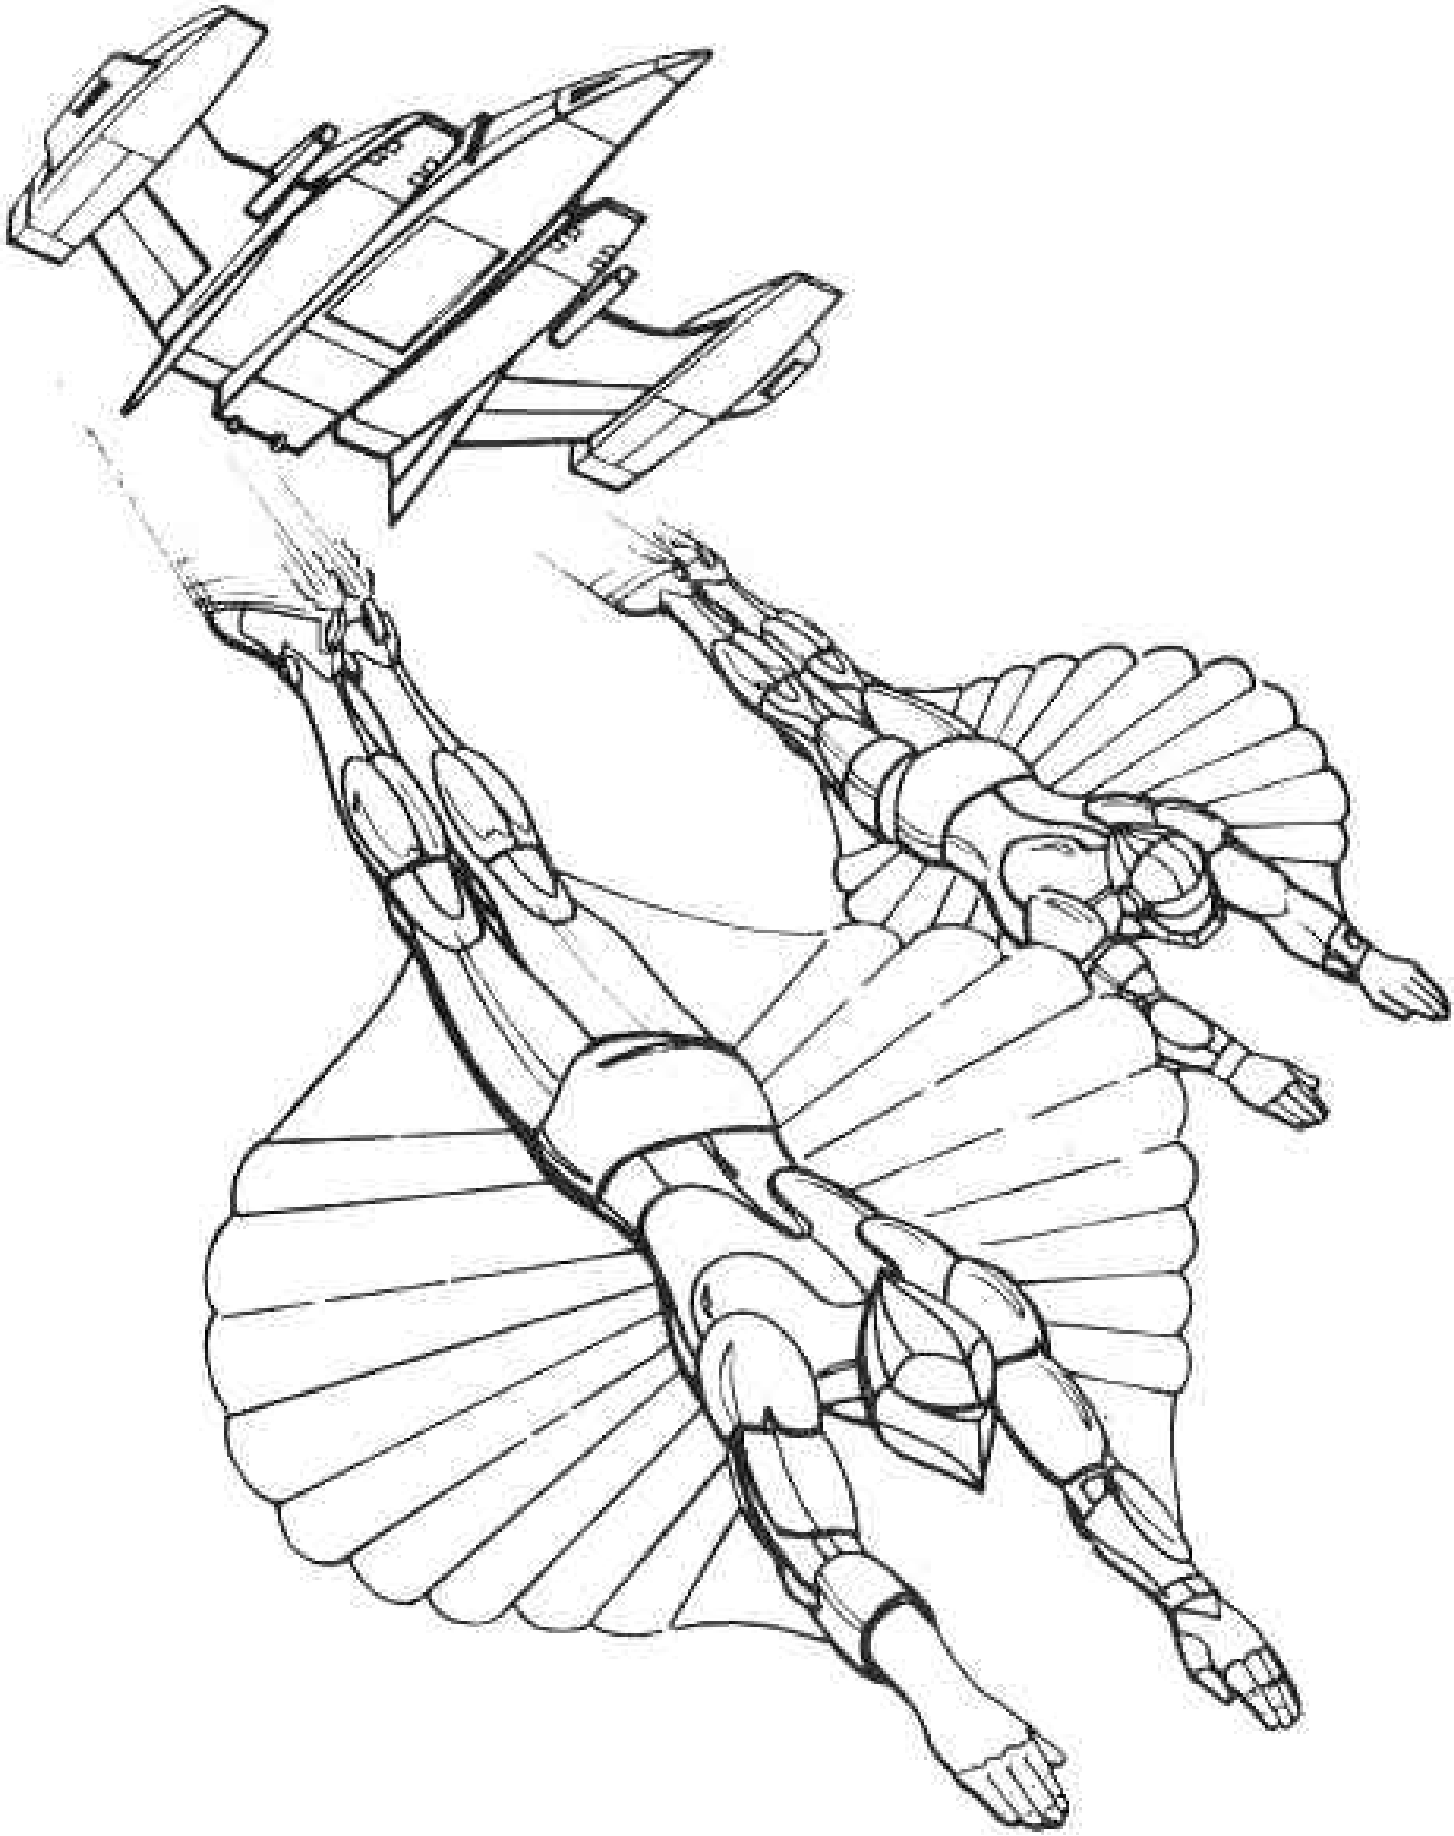




Melodia saw them coming and netted the SilverHawks' spaceship, the Mirage.

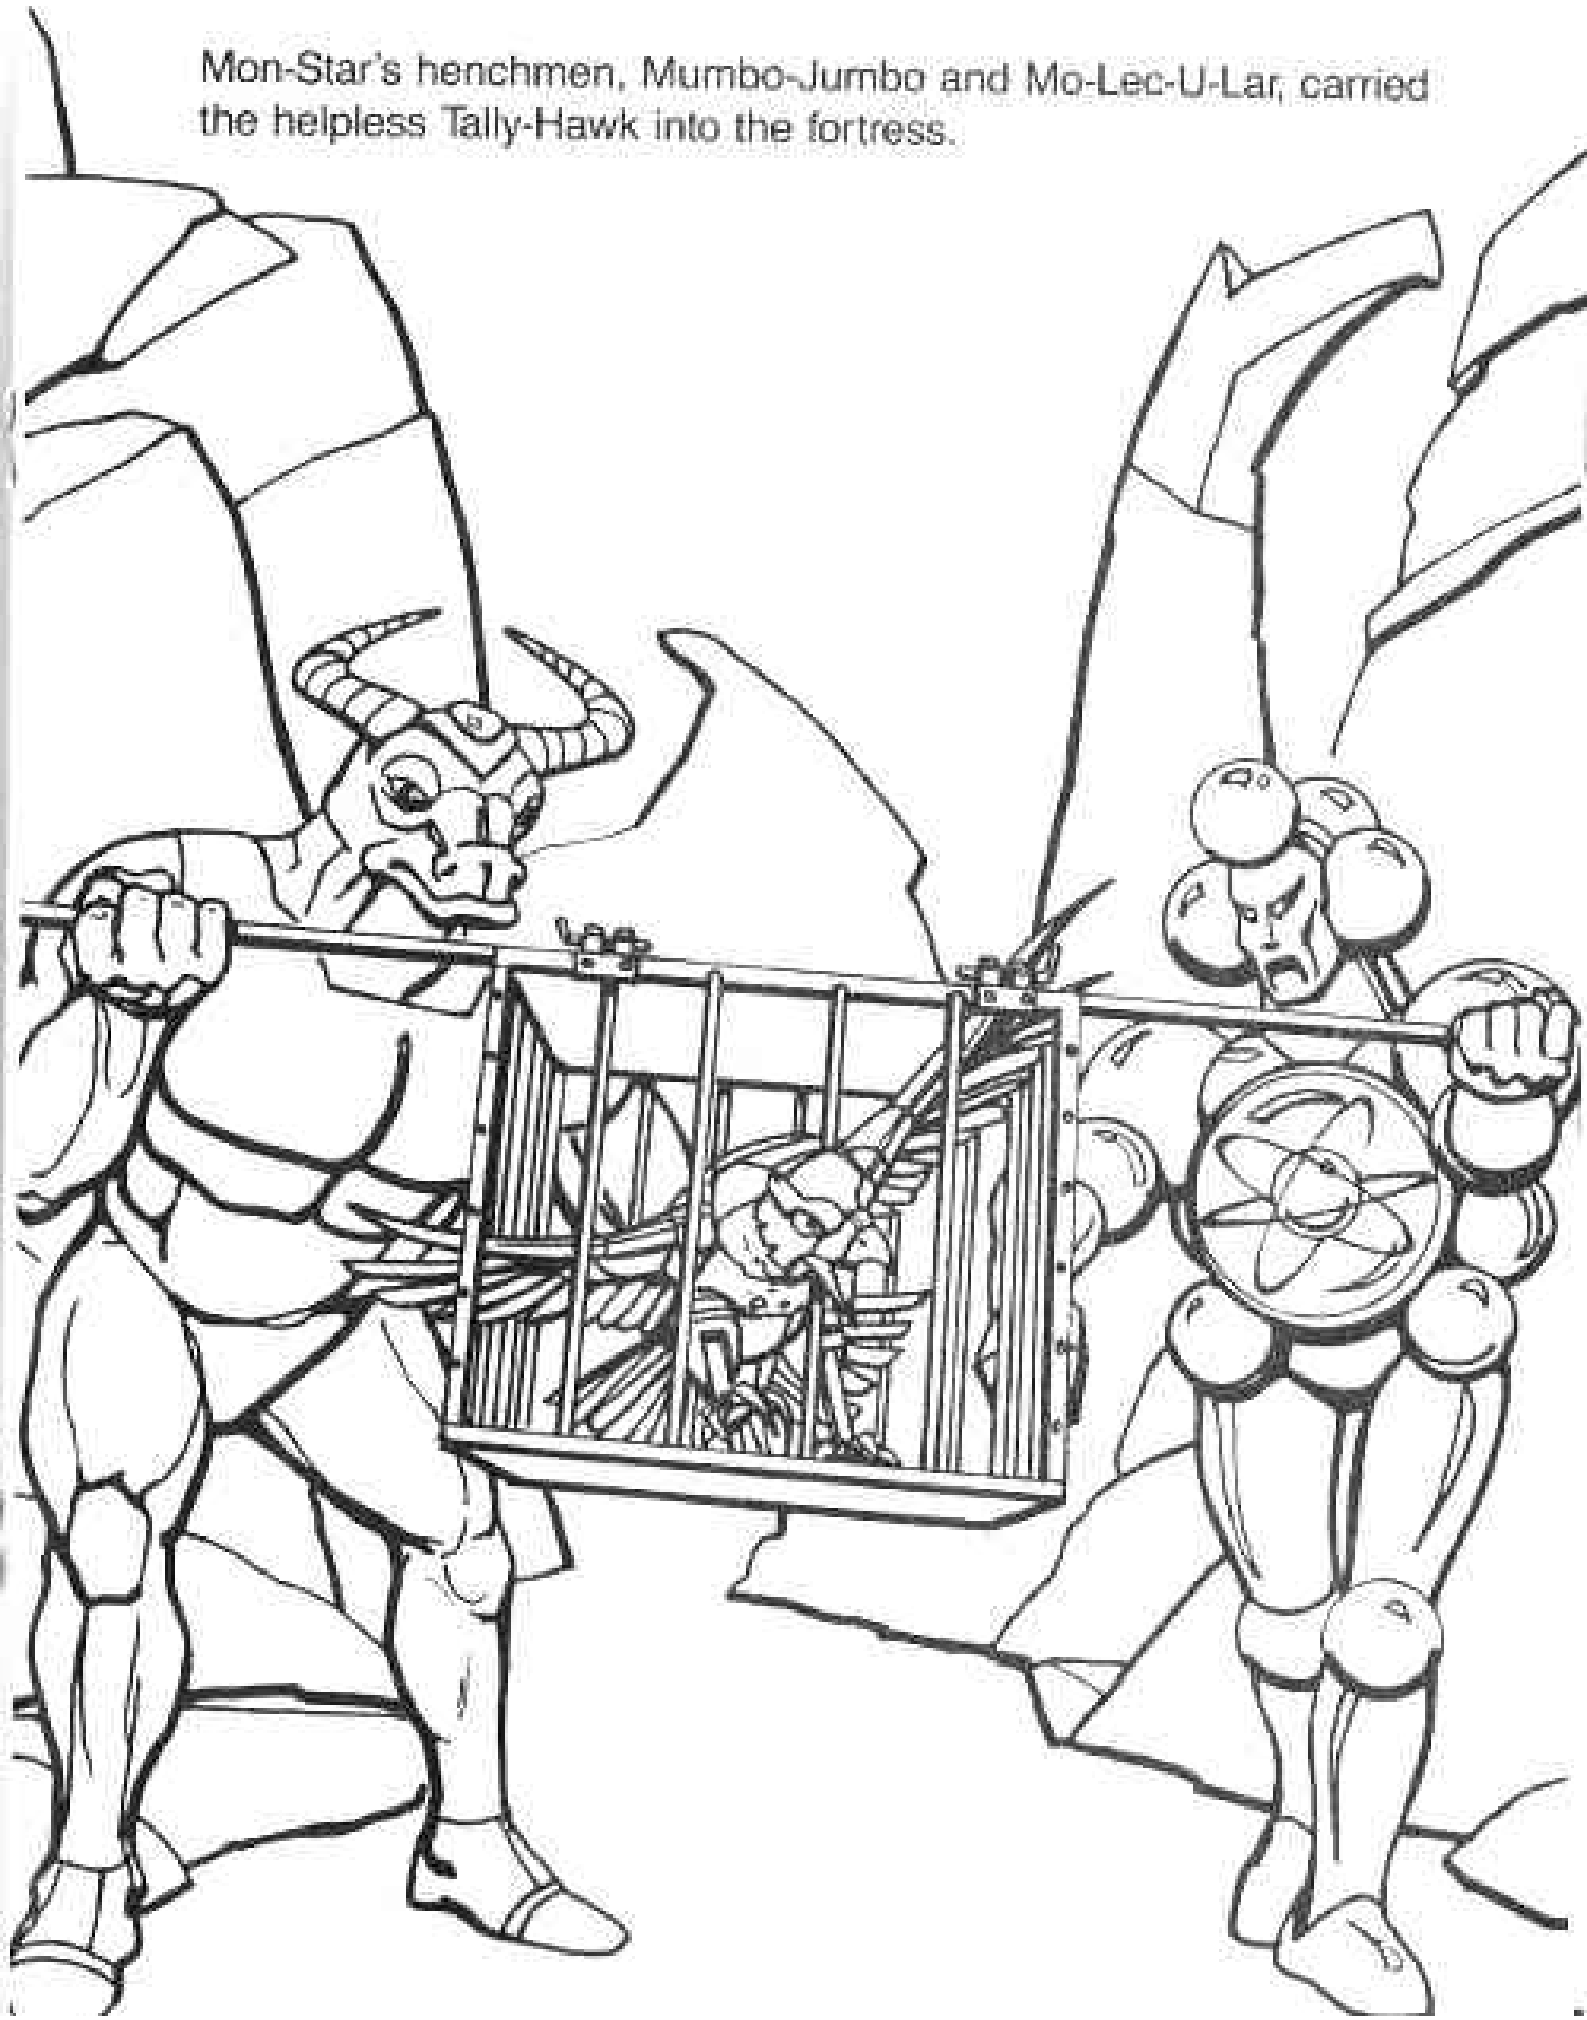
Windhammer struck his tuning fork and sucked Tally-Hawk down the throat of a whirling space cyclone.



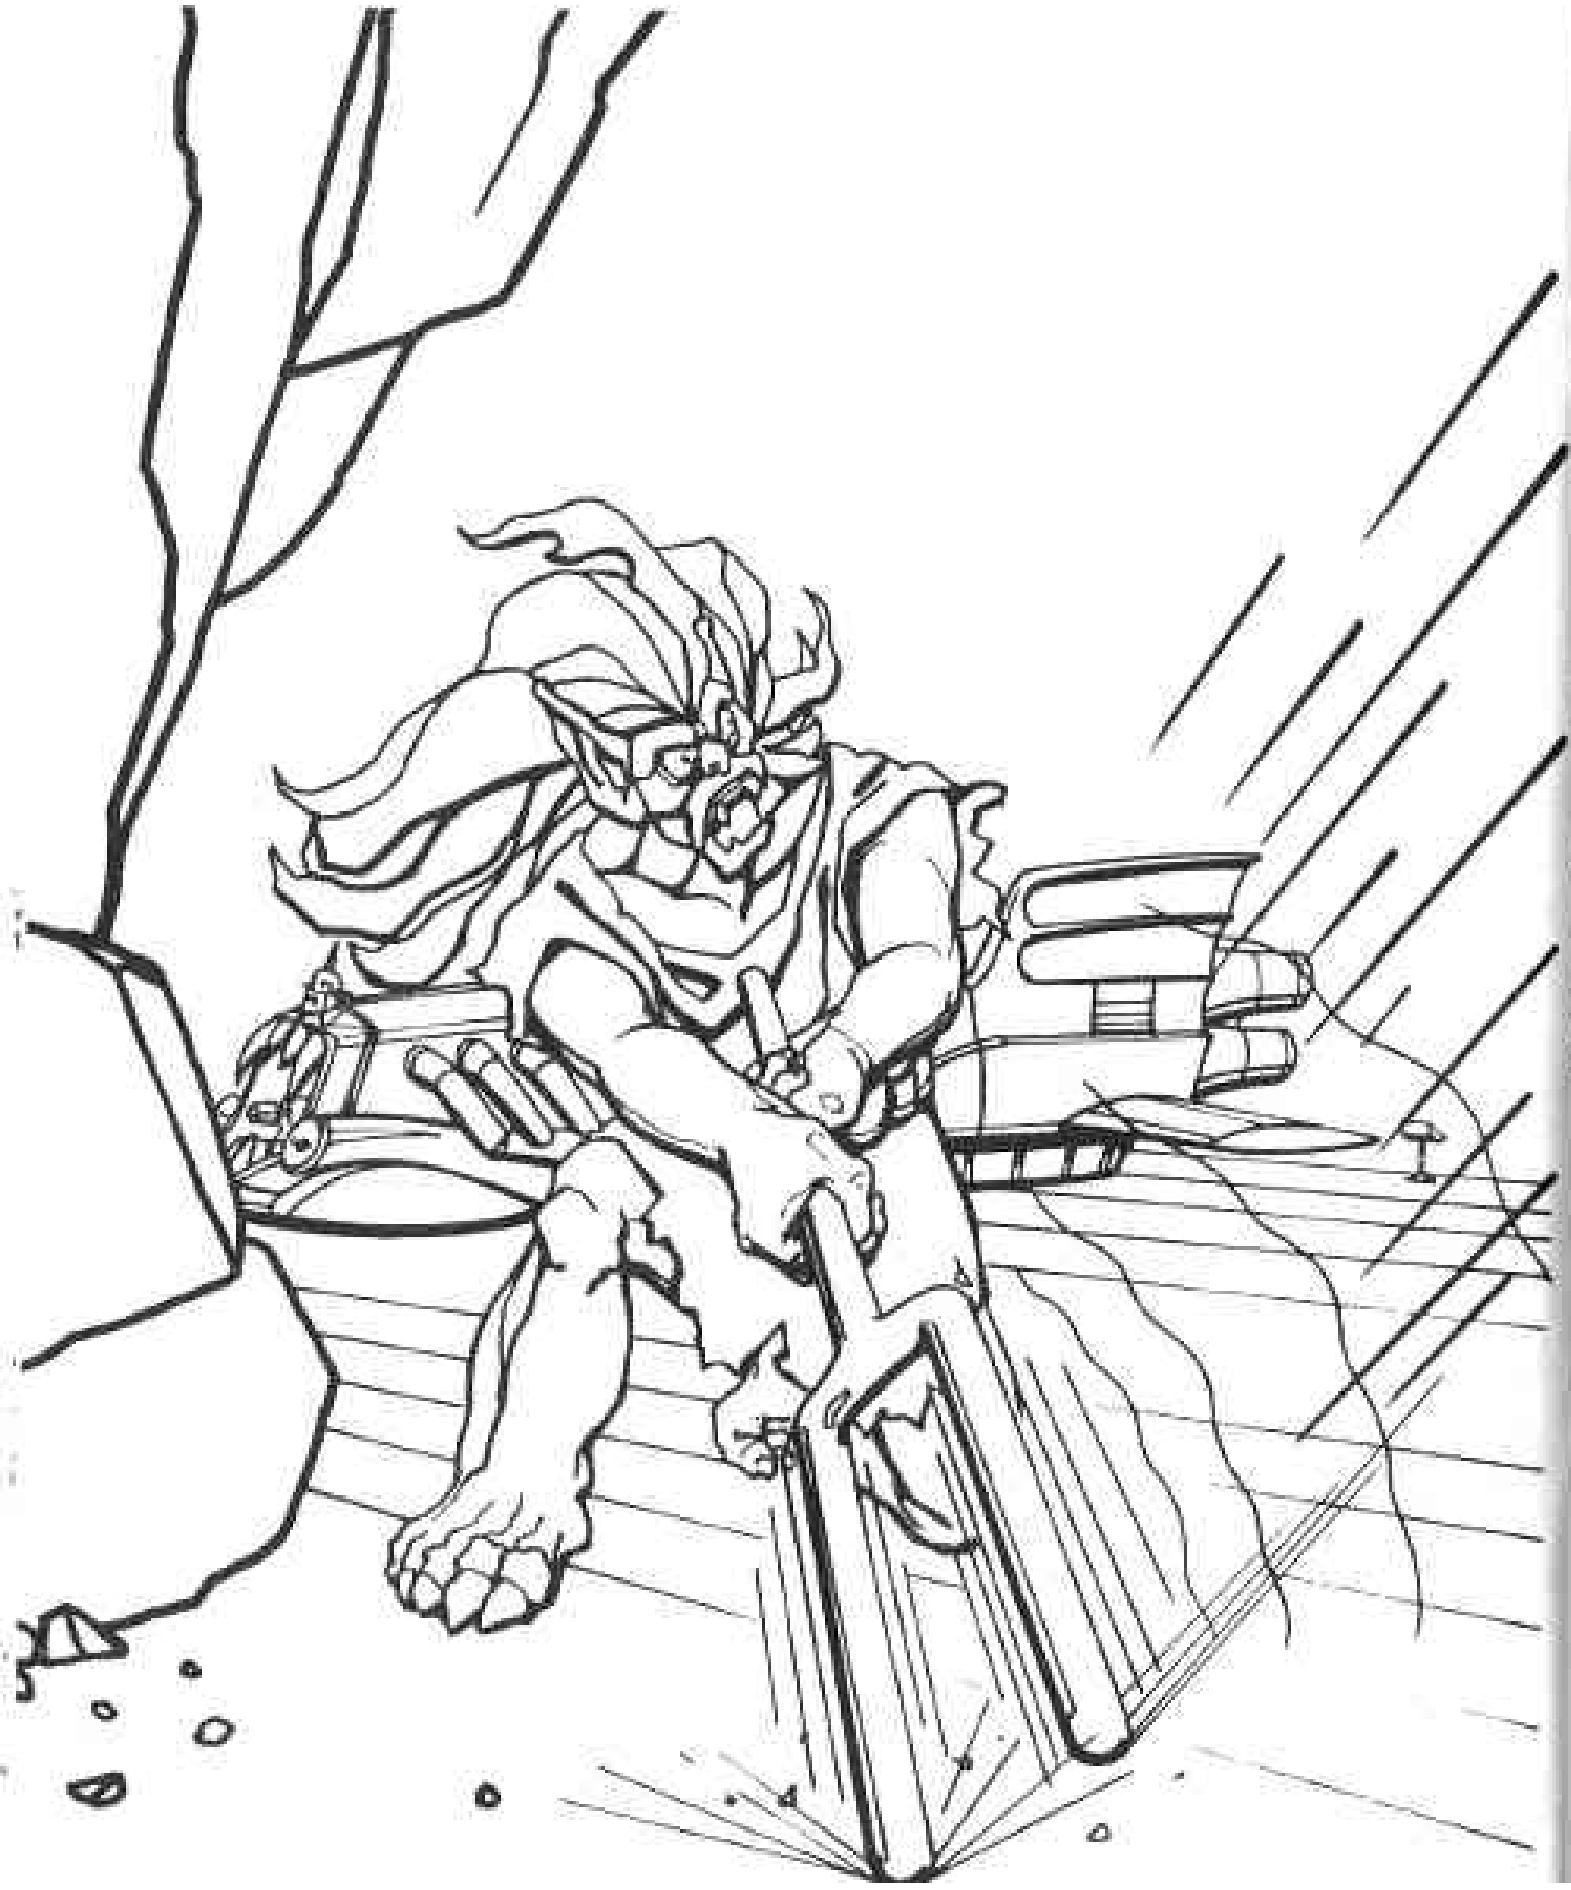


After the Mirage broke free, the SilverHawks dove down to the Brim-Star to rescue Tally-Hawk.

Mon-Star's henchmen, Mumbo-Jumbo and Mo-Lec-U-Lar, carried the helpless Tally-Hawk into the fortress.

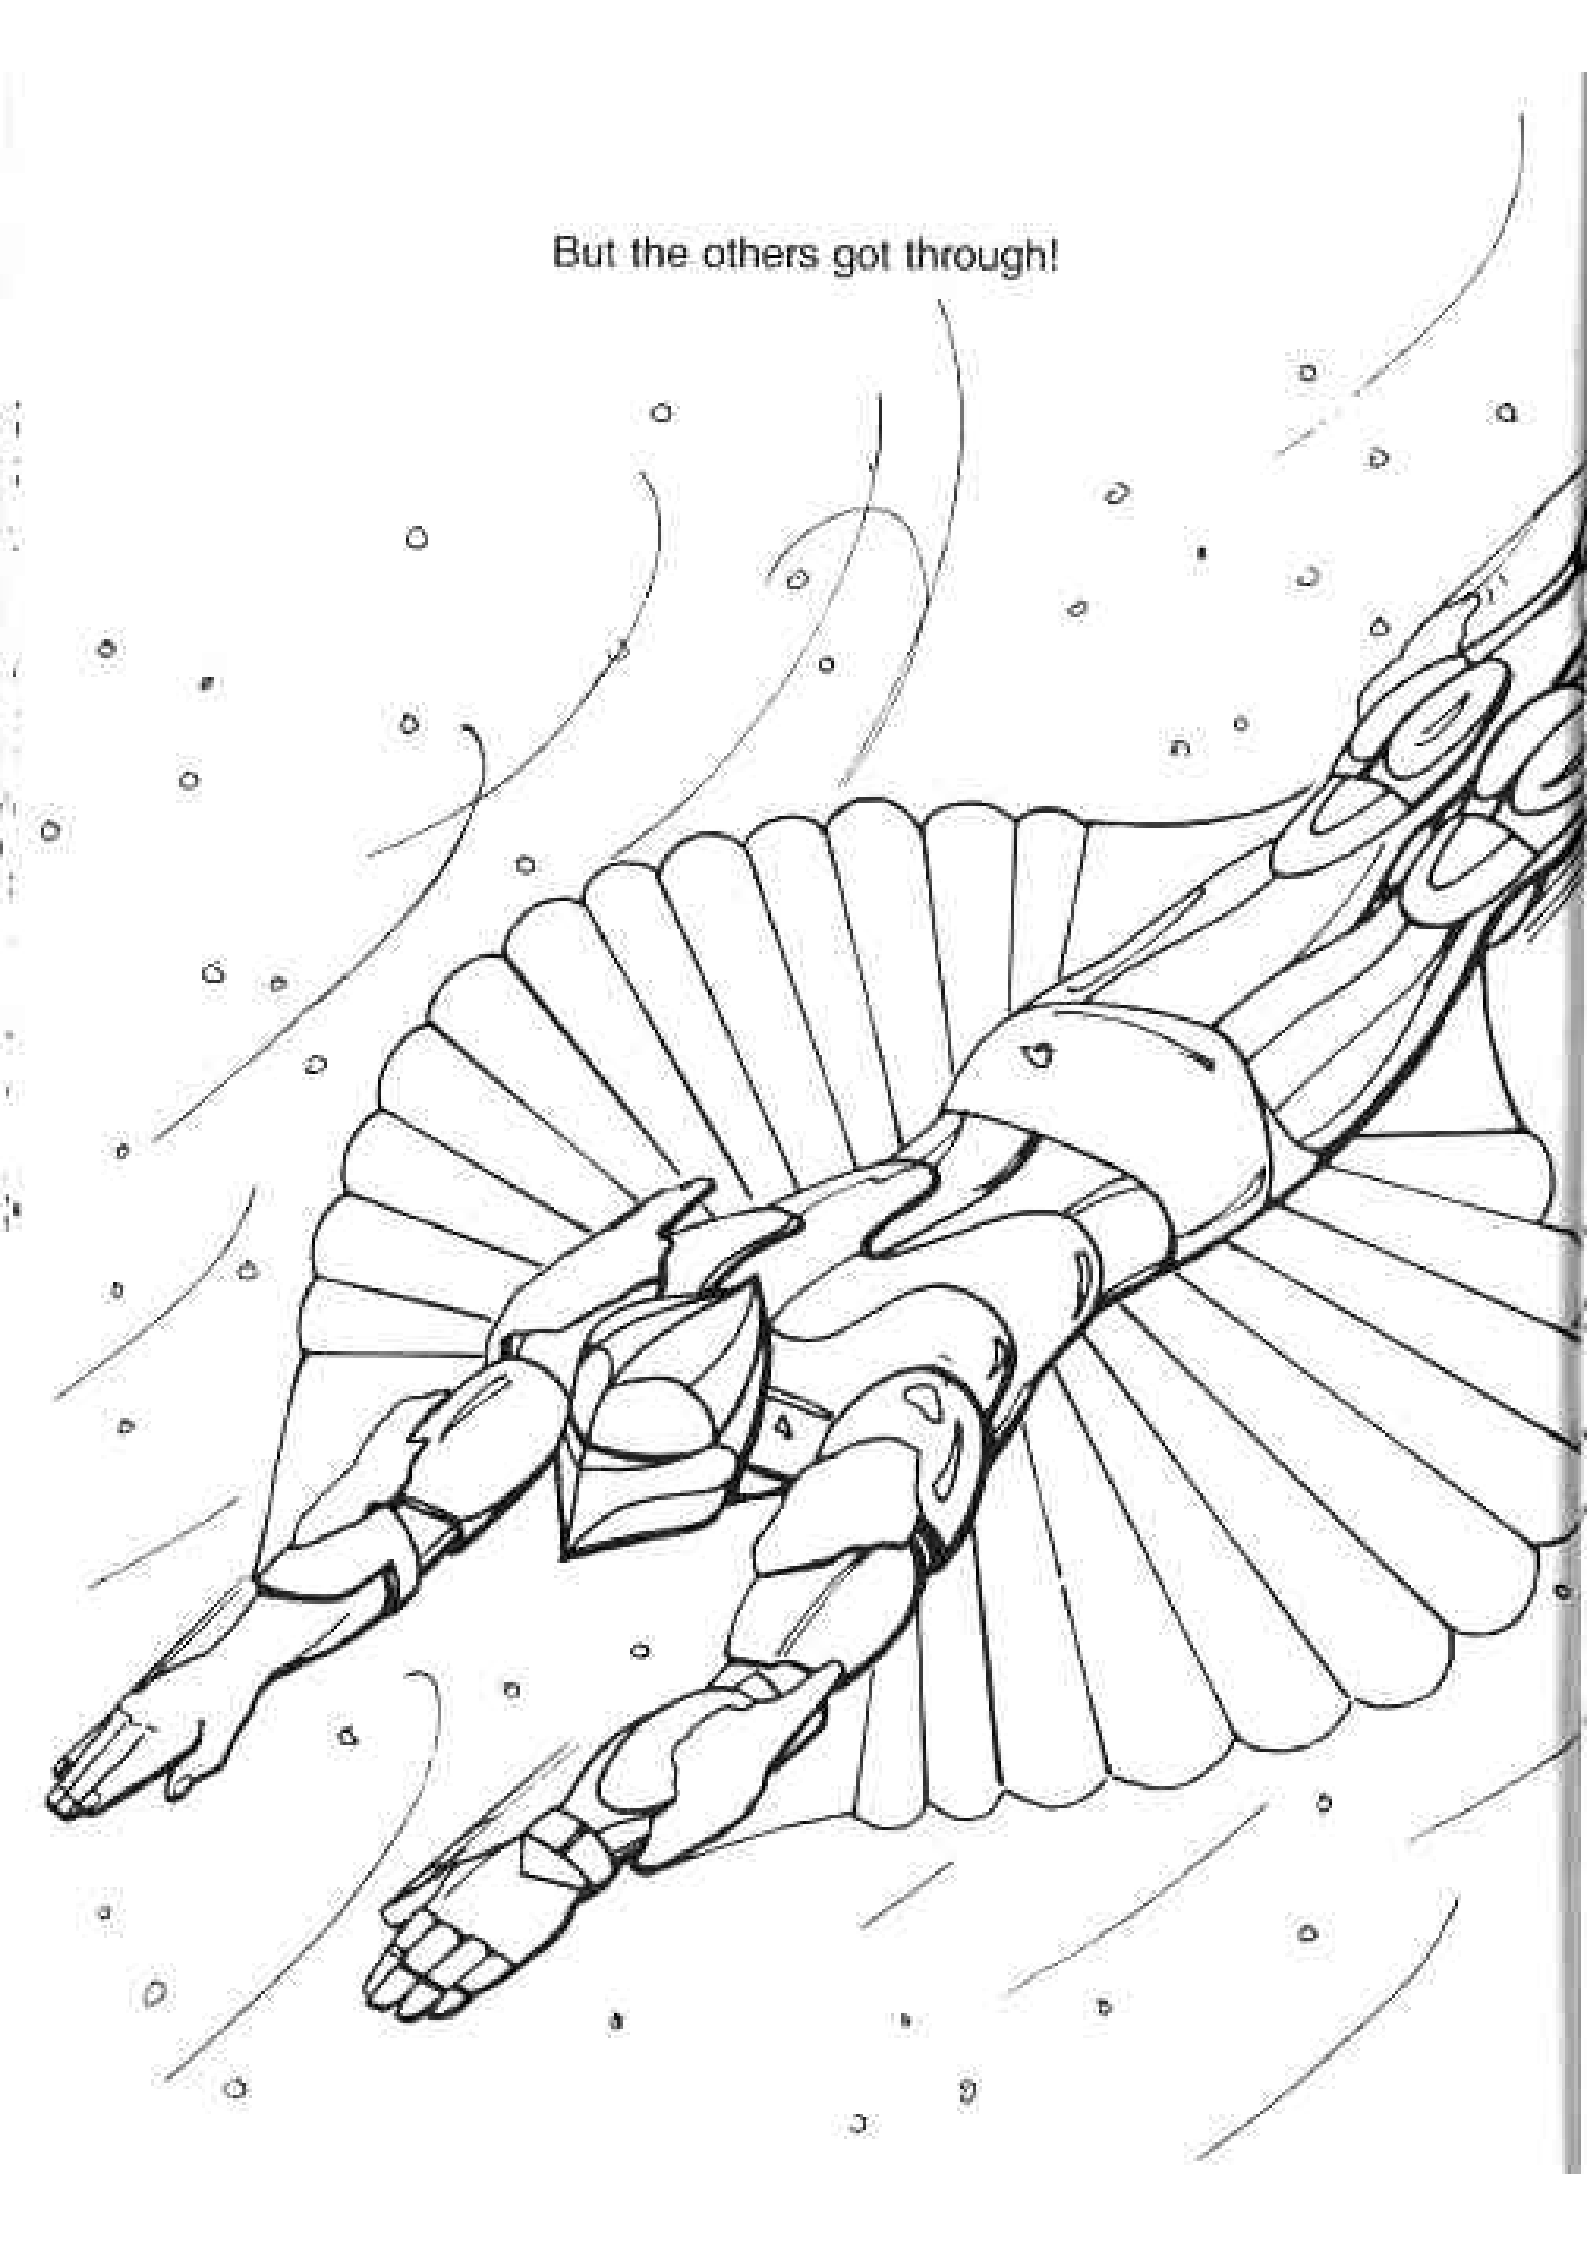


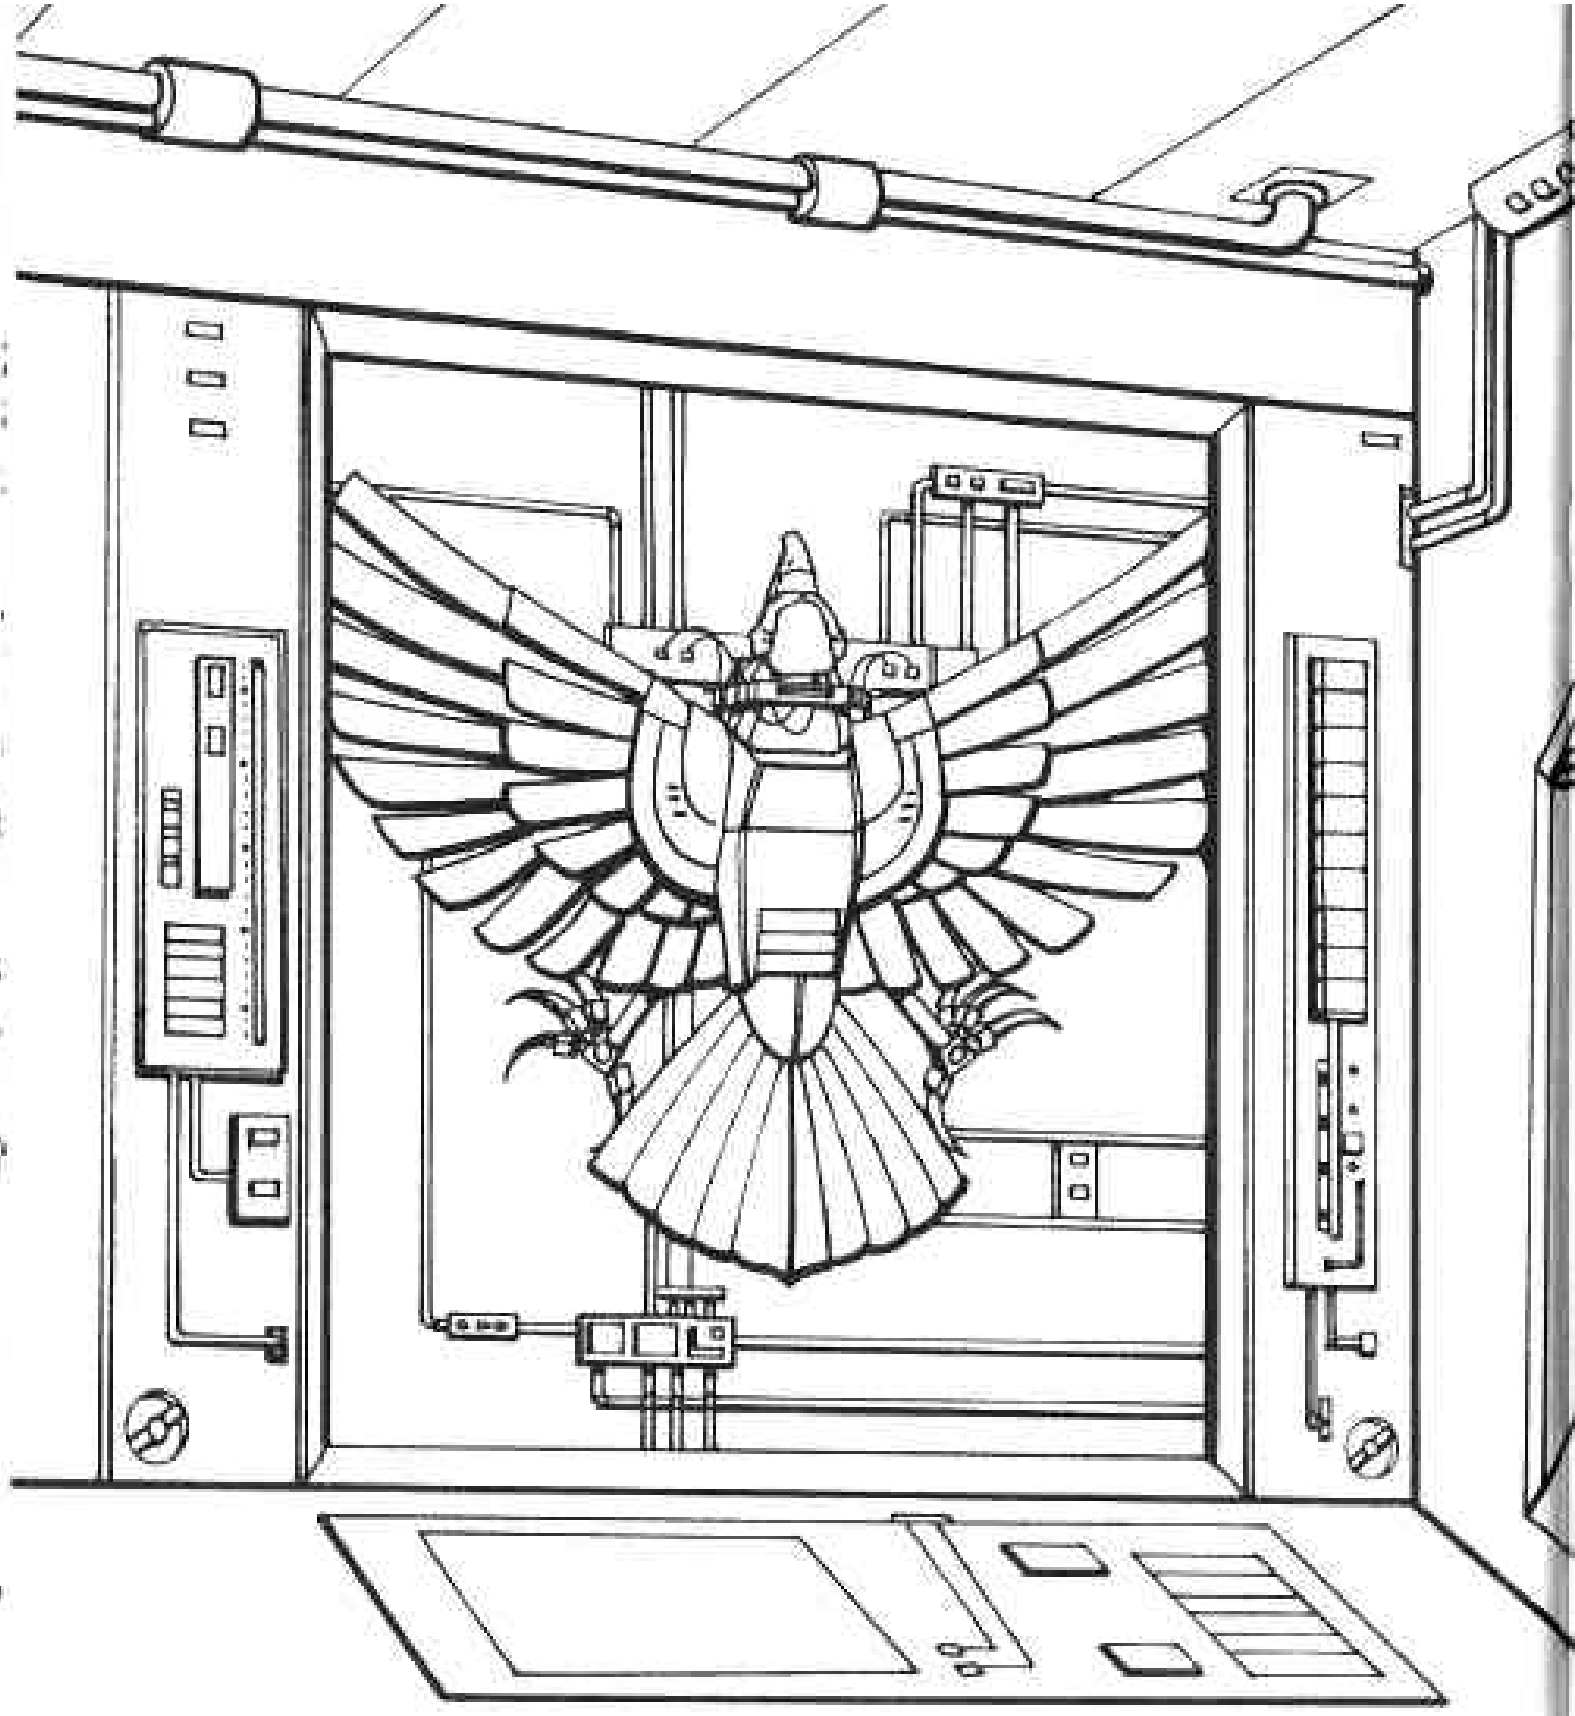
Windhammer cooled the SilverHawks' jets with a space blizzard.



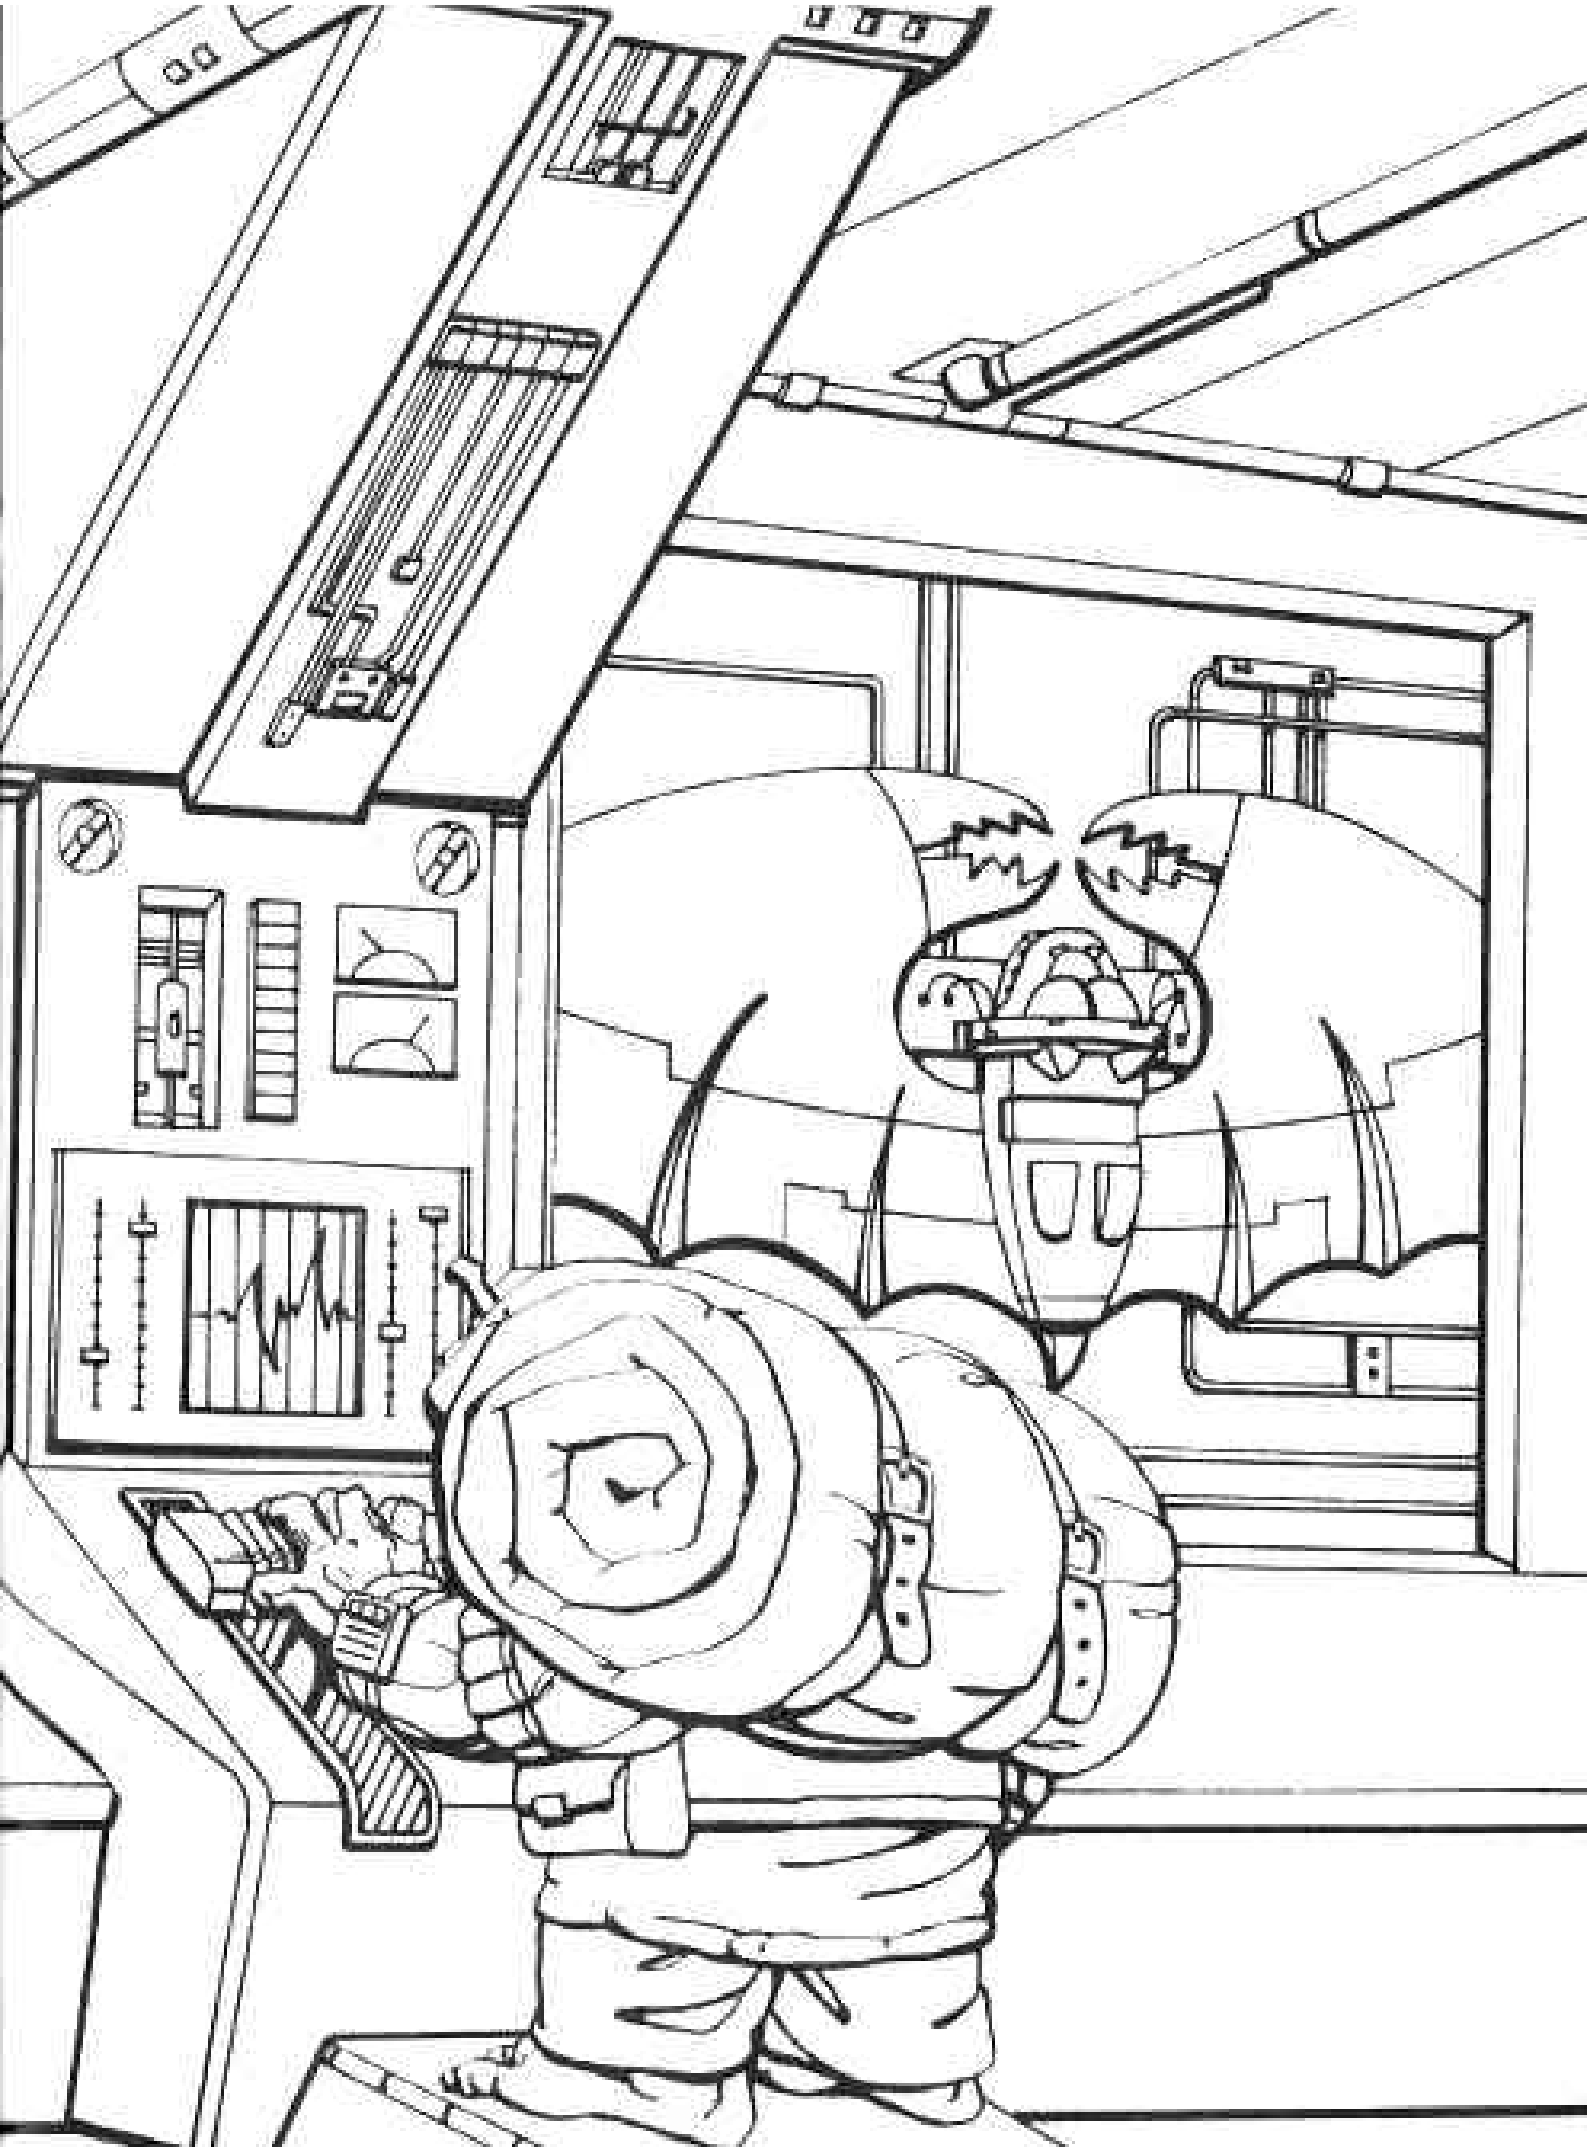
The blizzard was too much for the Copper Kidd...

But the others got through!

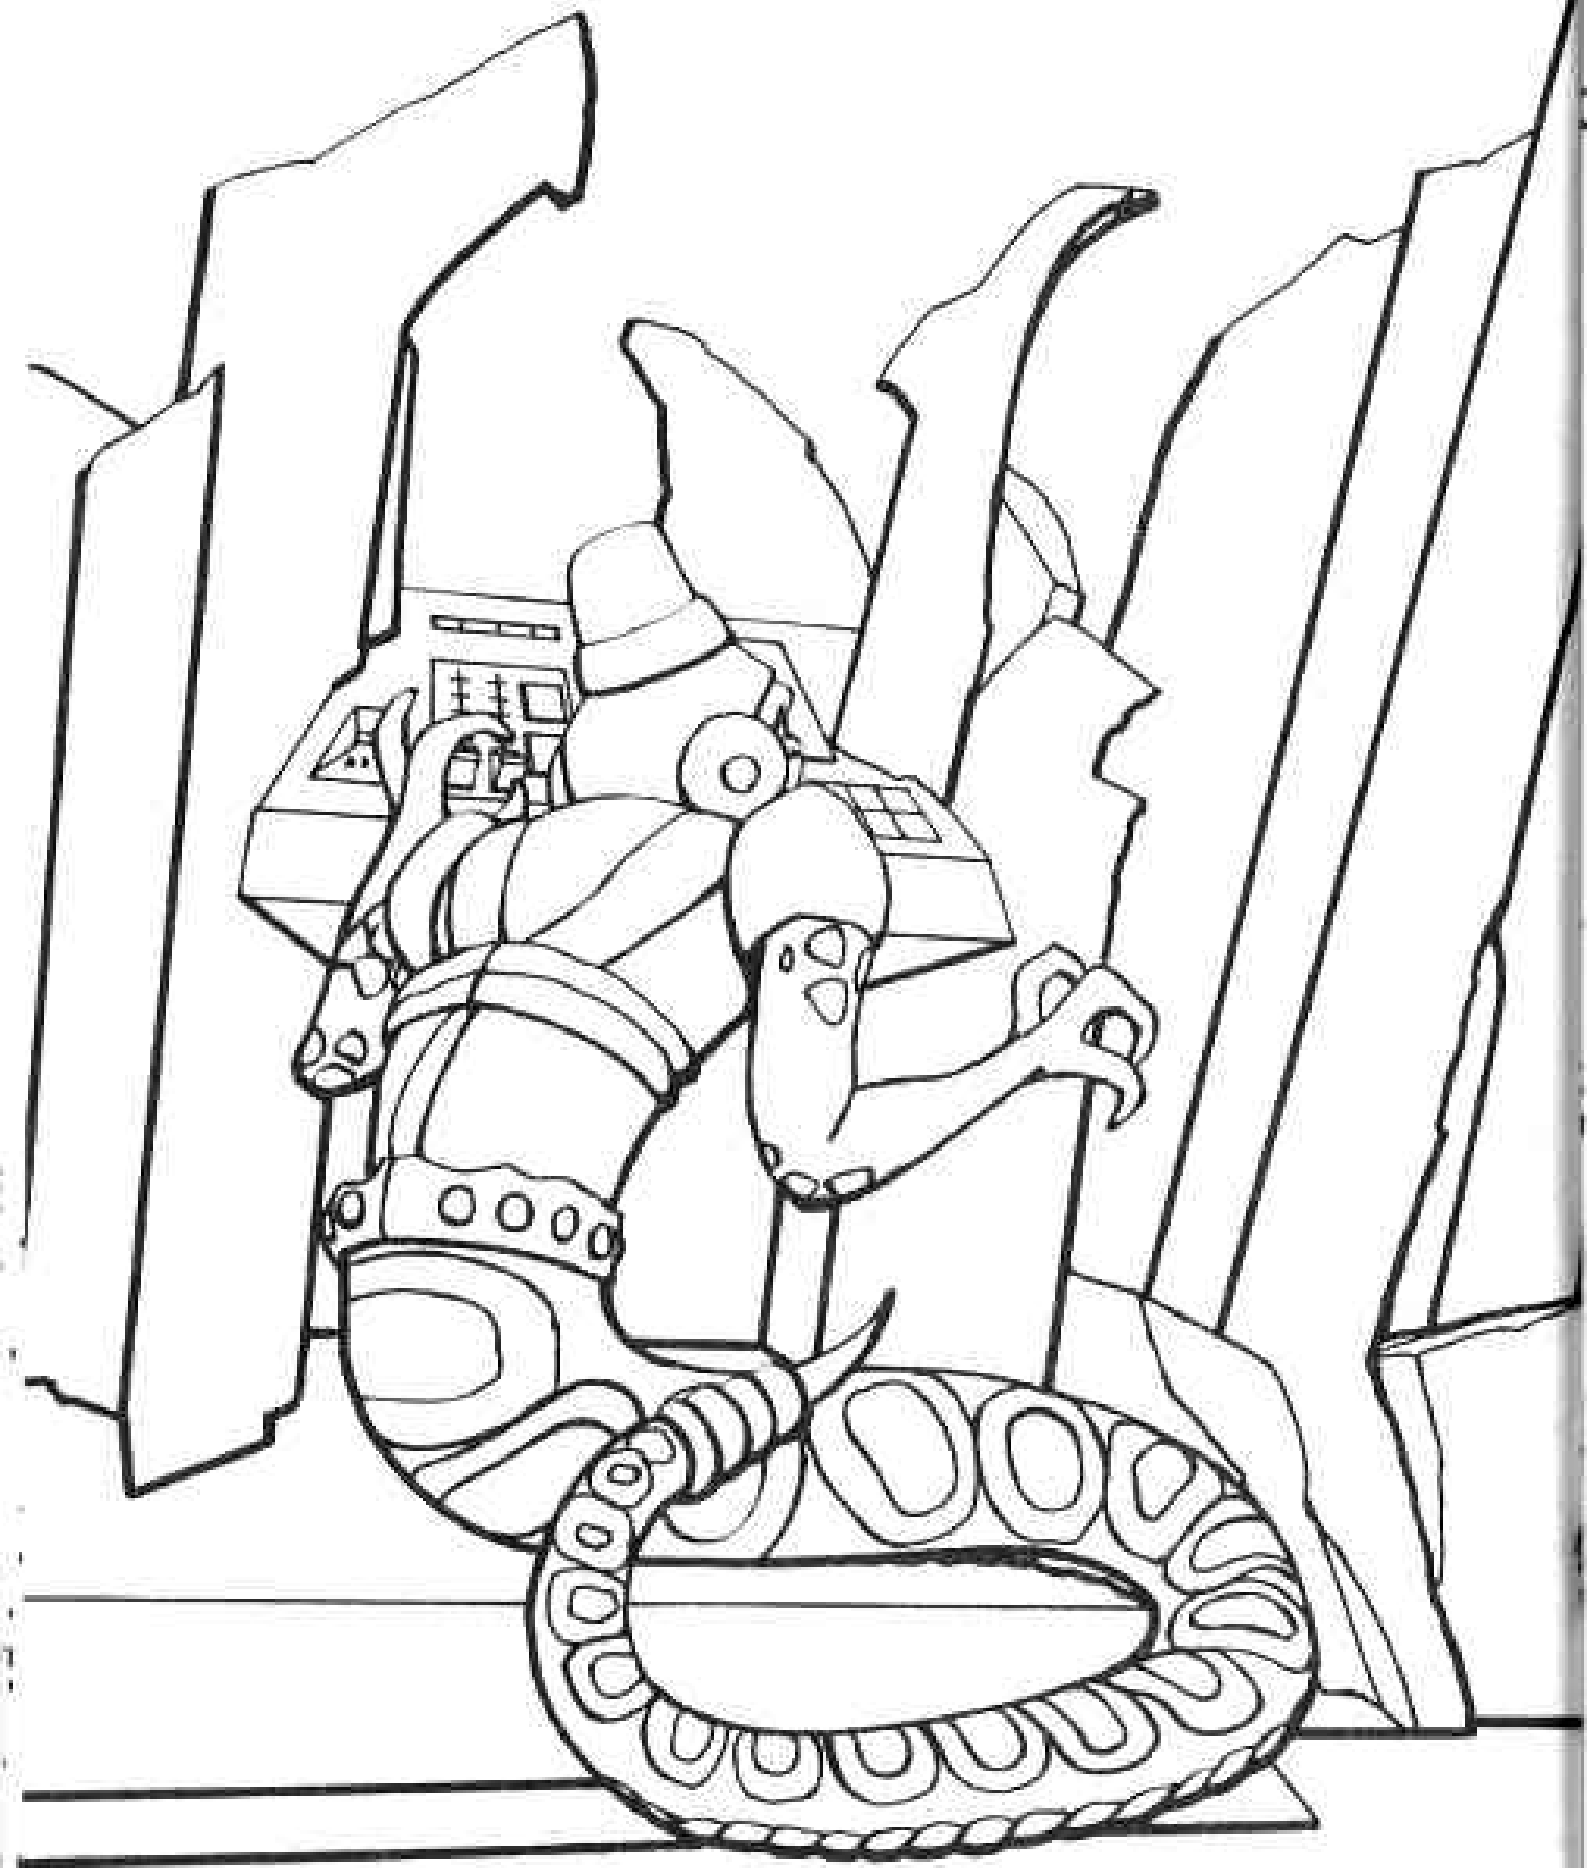




Deep inside the Brim-Star, Hardware began to transfer Tally-Hawk's control circuits to the Sky-Shadow.



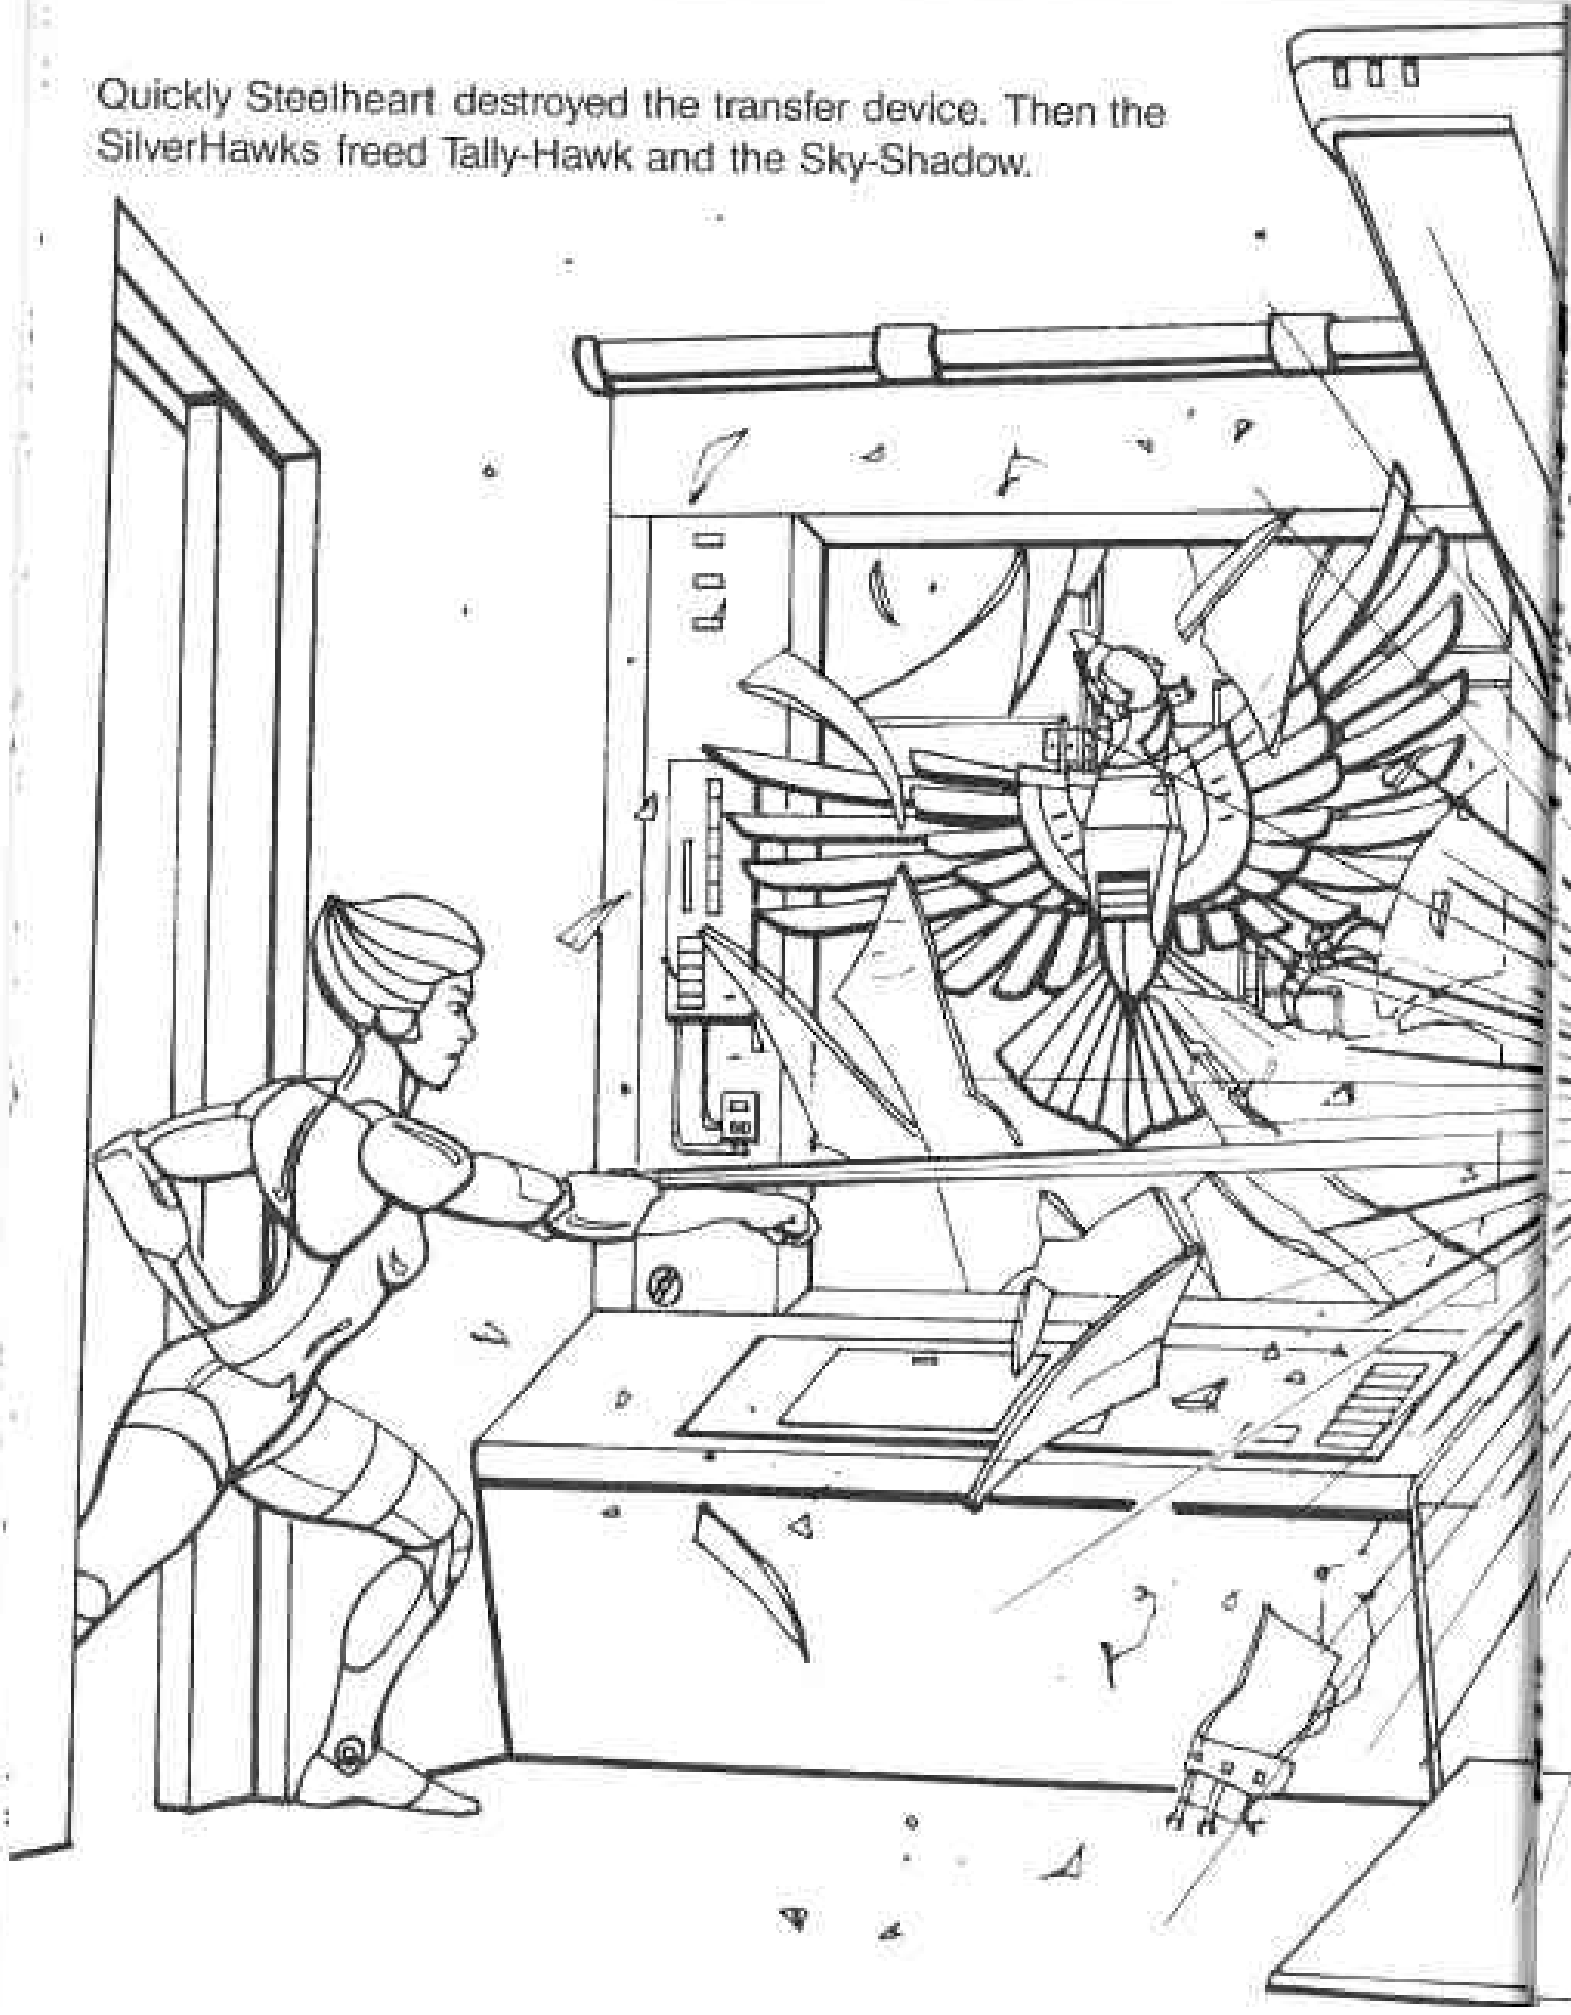
Just then an alarm rang out. The SilverHawks had broken through the blizzard!
Mon-Star and Yes-Man raced to the transformation chamber.

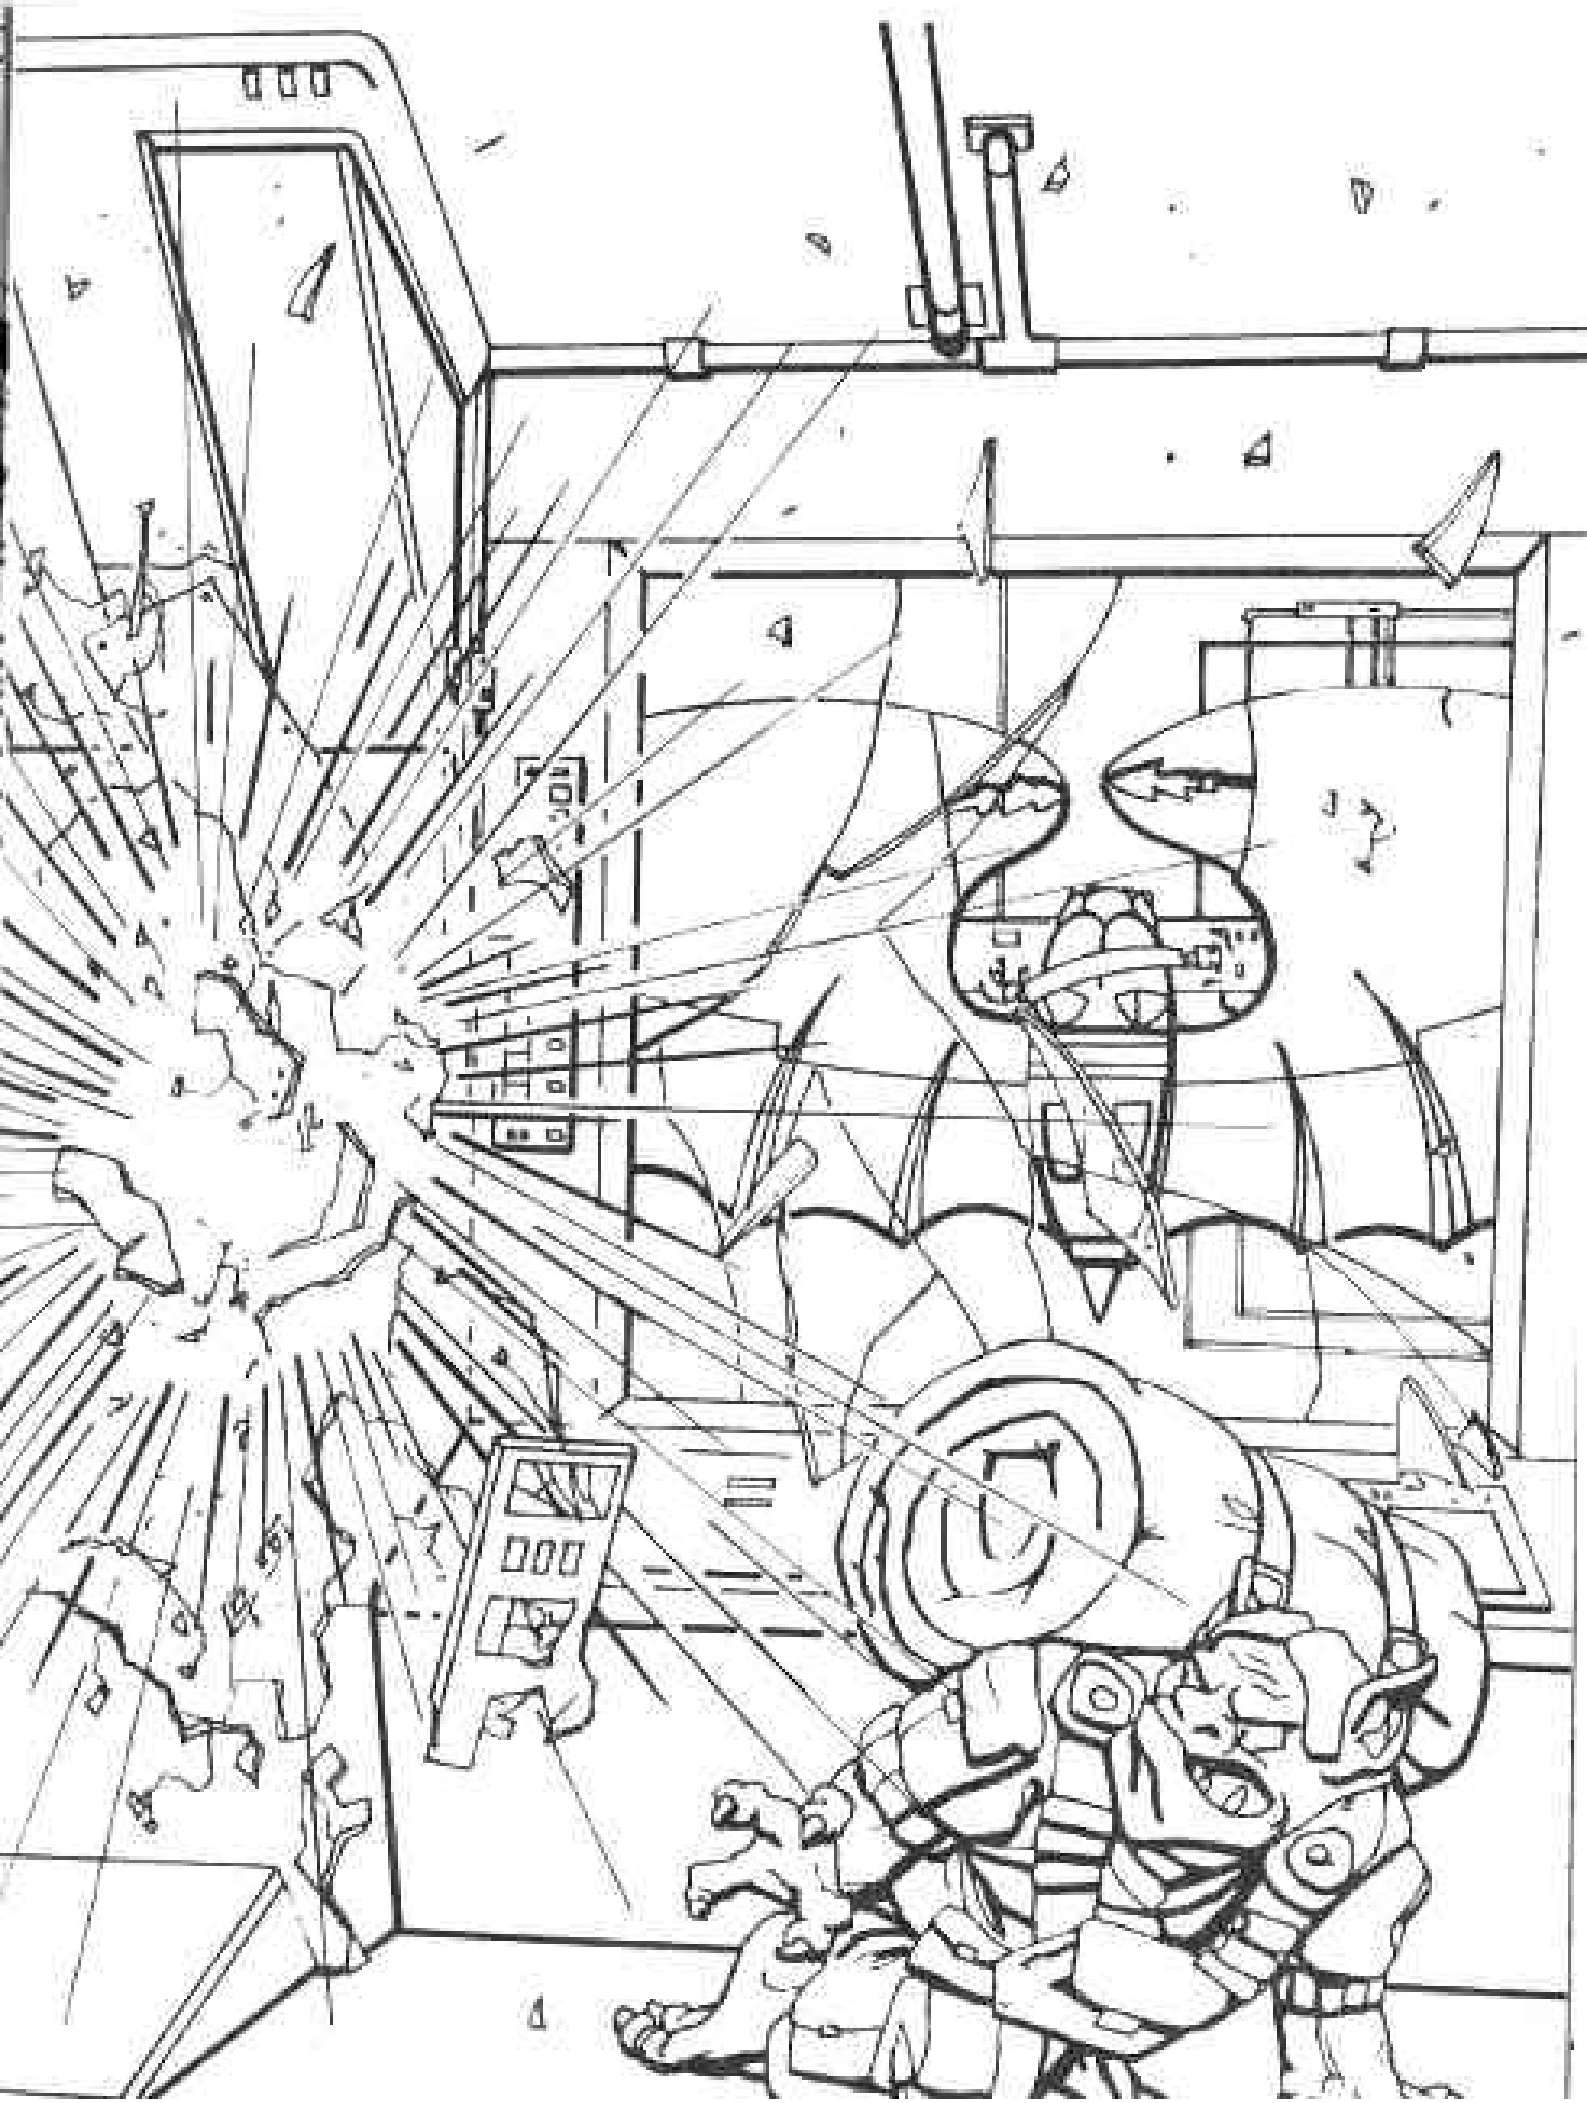


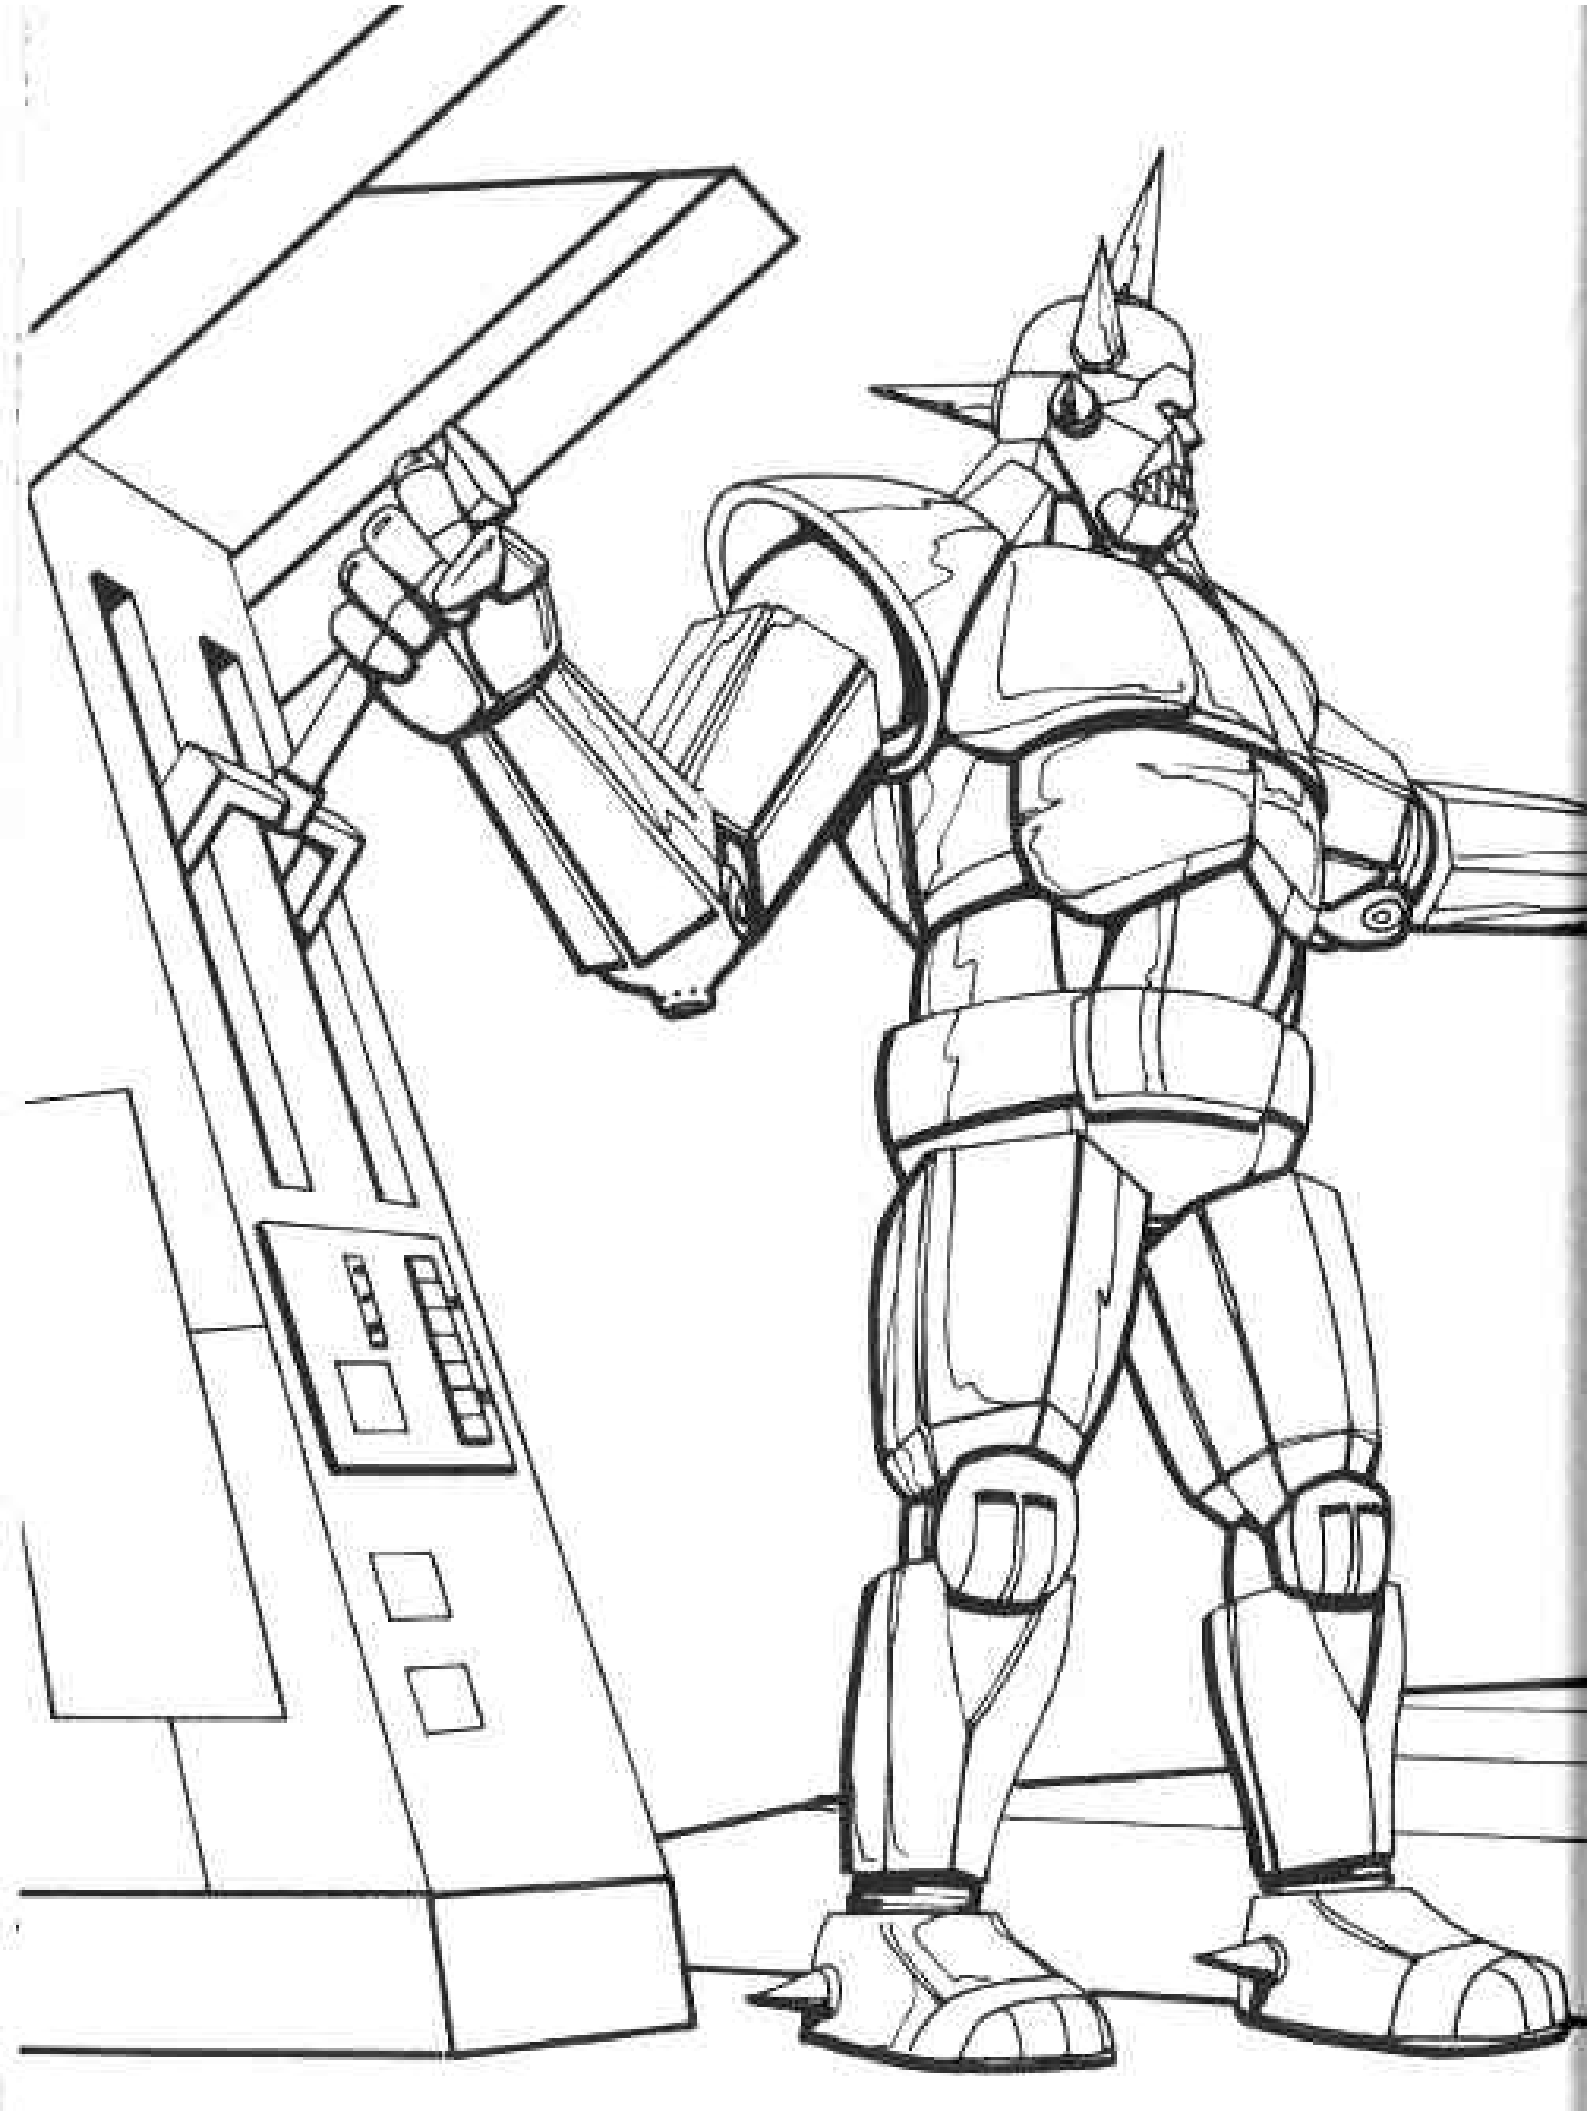
The SilverHawks landed and started to search for Tally-Hawk.

Soon they peered through the door to the room where Tally-Hawk was kept prisoner.

Quickly Steelheart destroyed the transfer device. Then the SilverHawks freed Tally-Hawk and the Sky-Shadow.



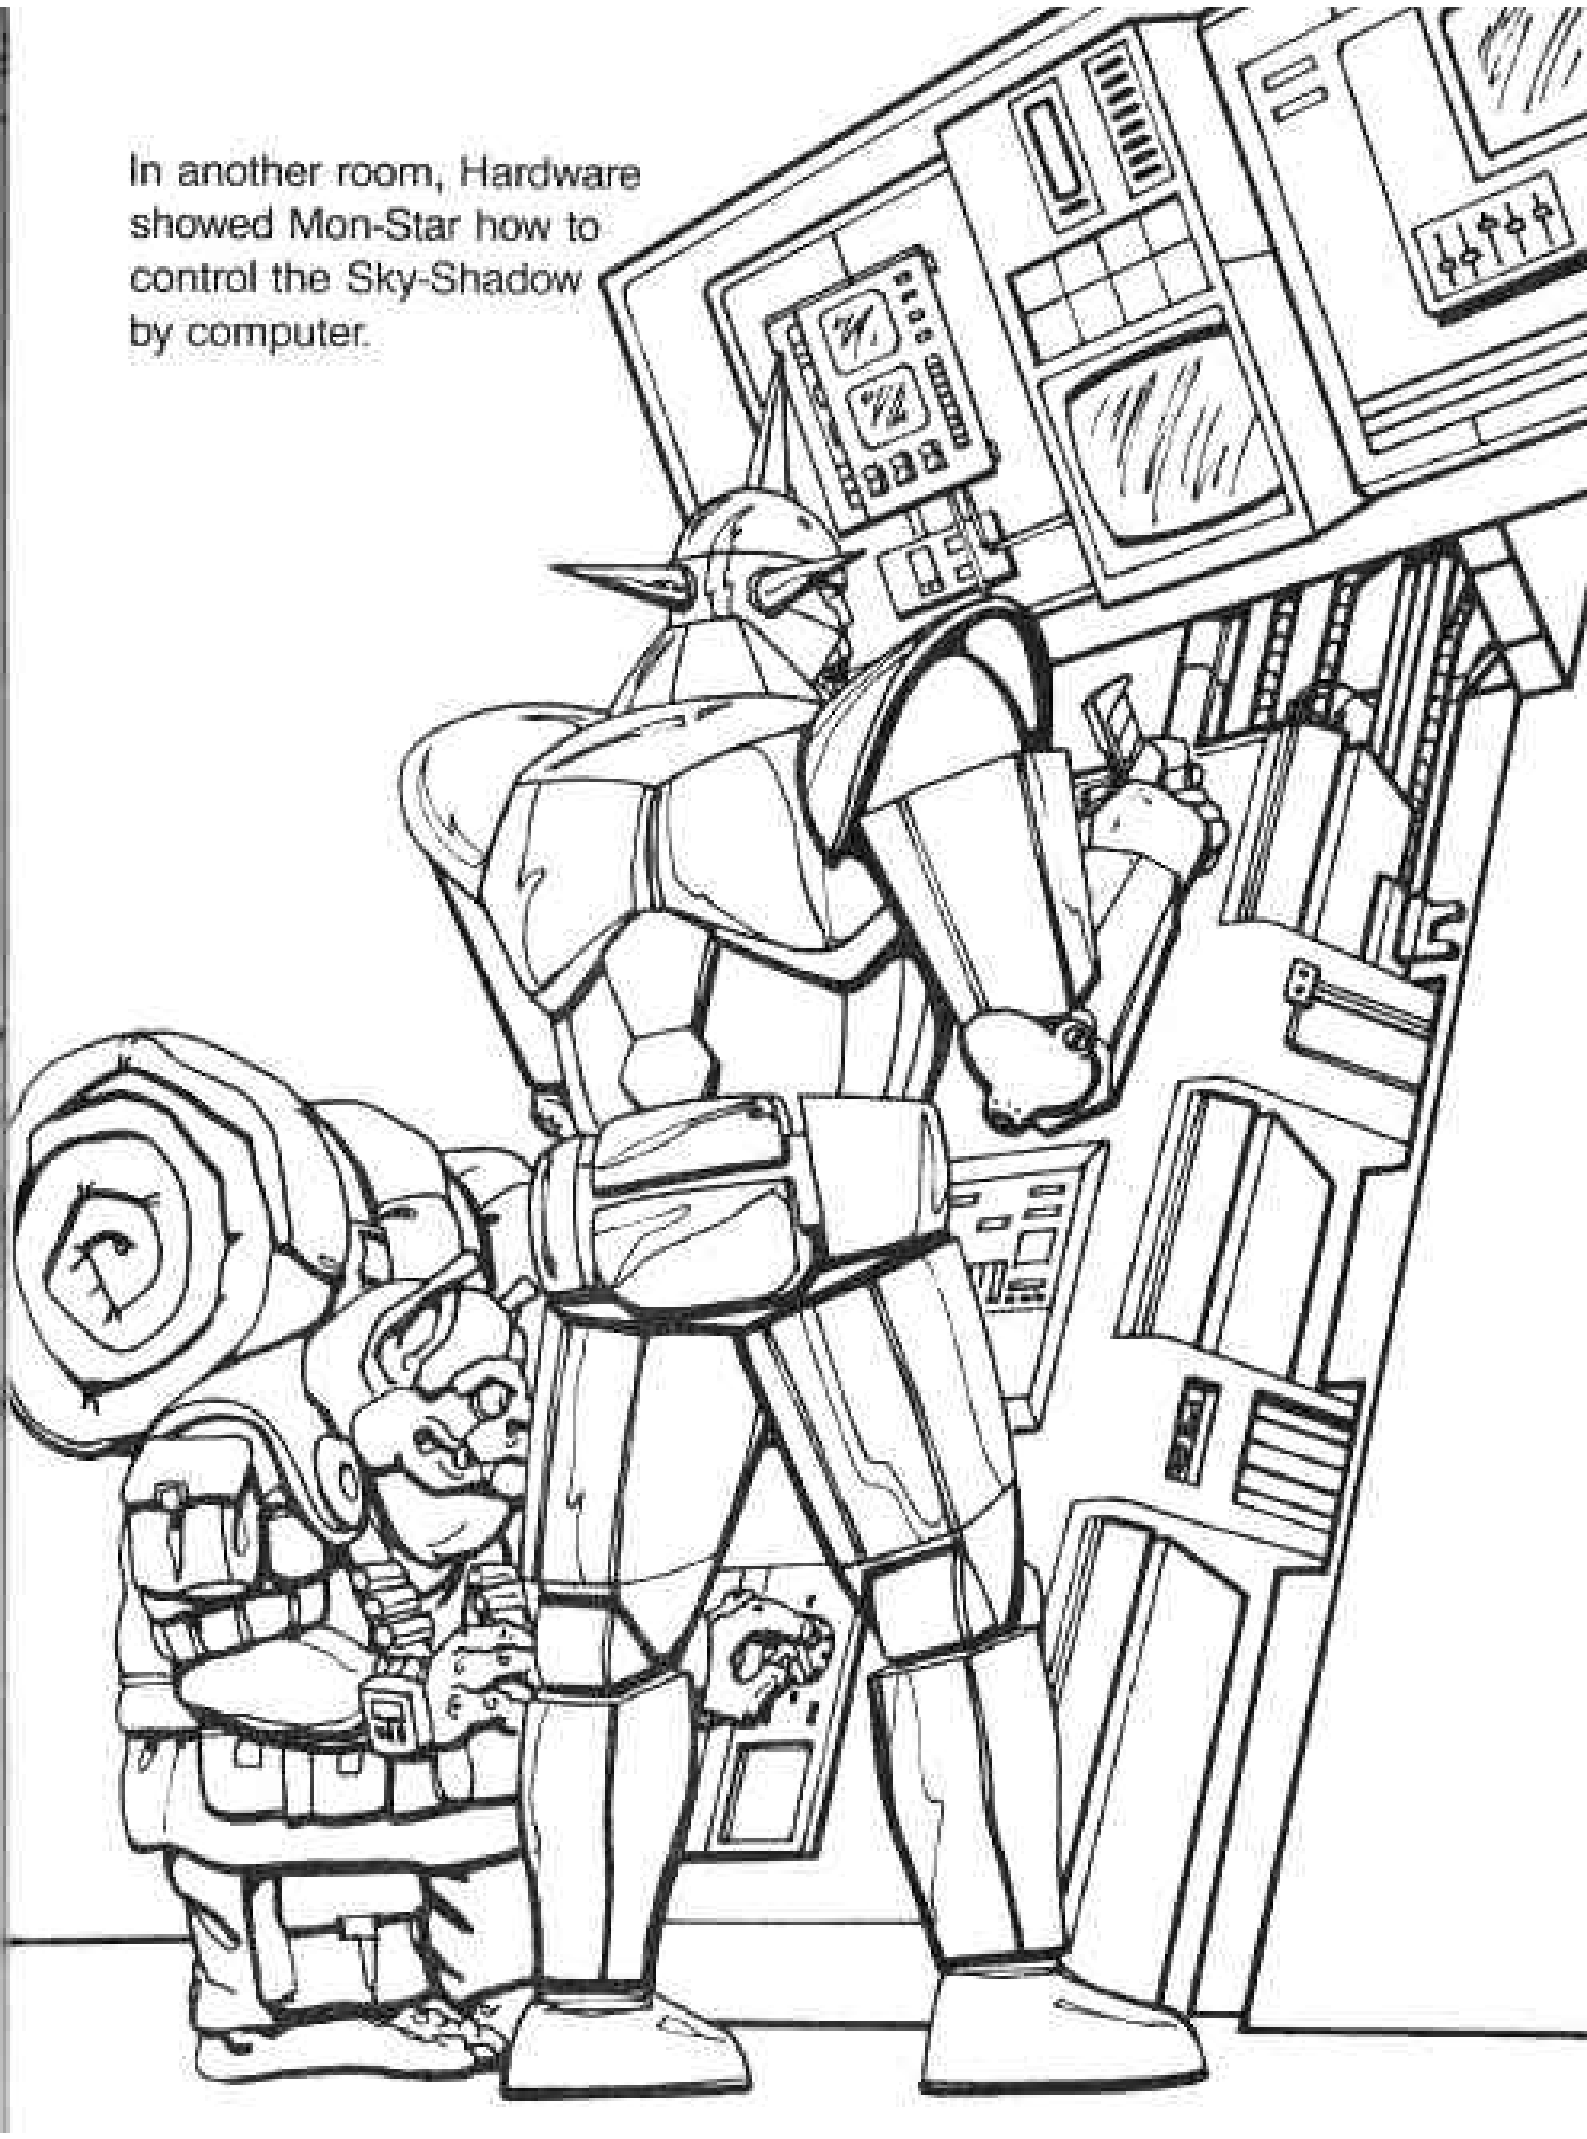


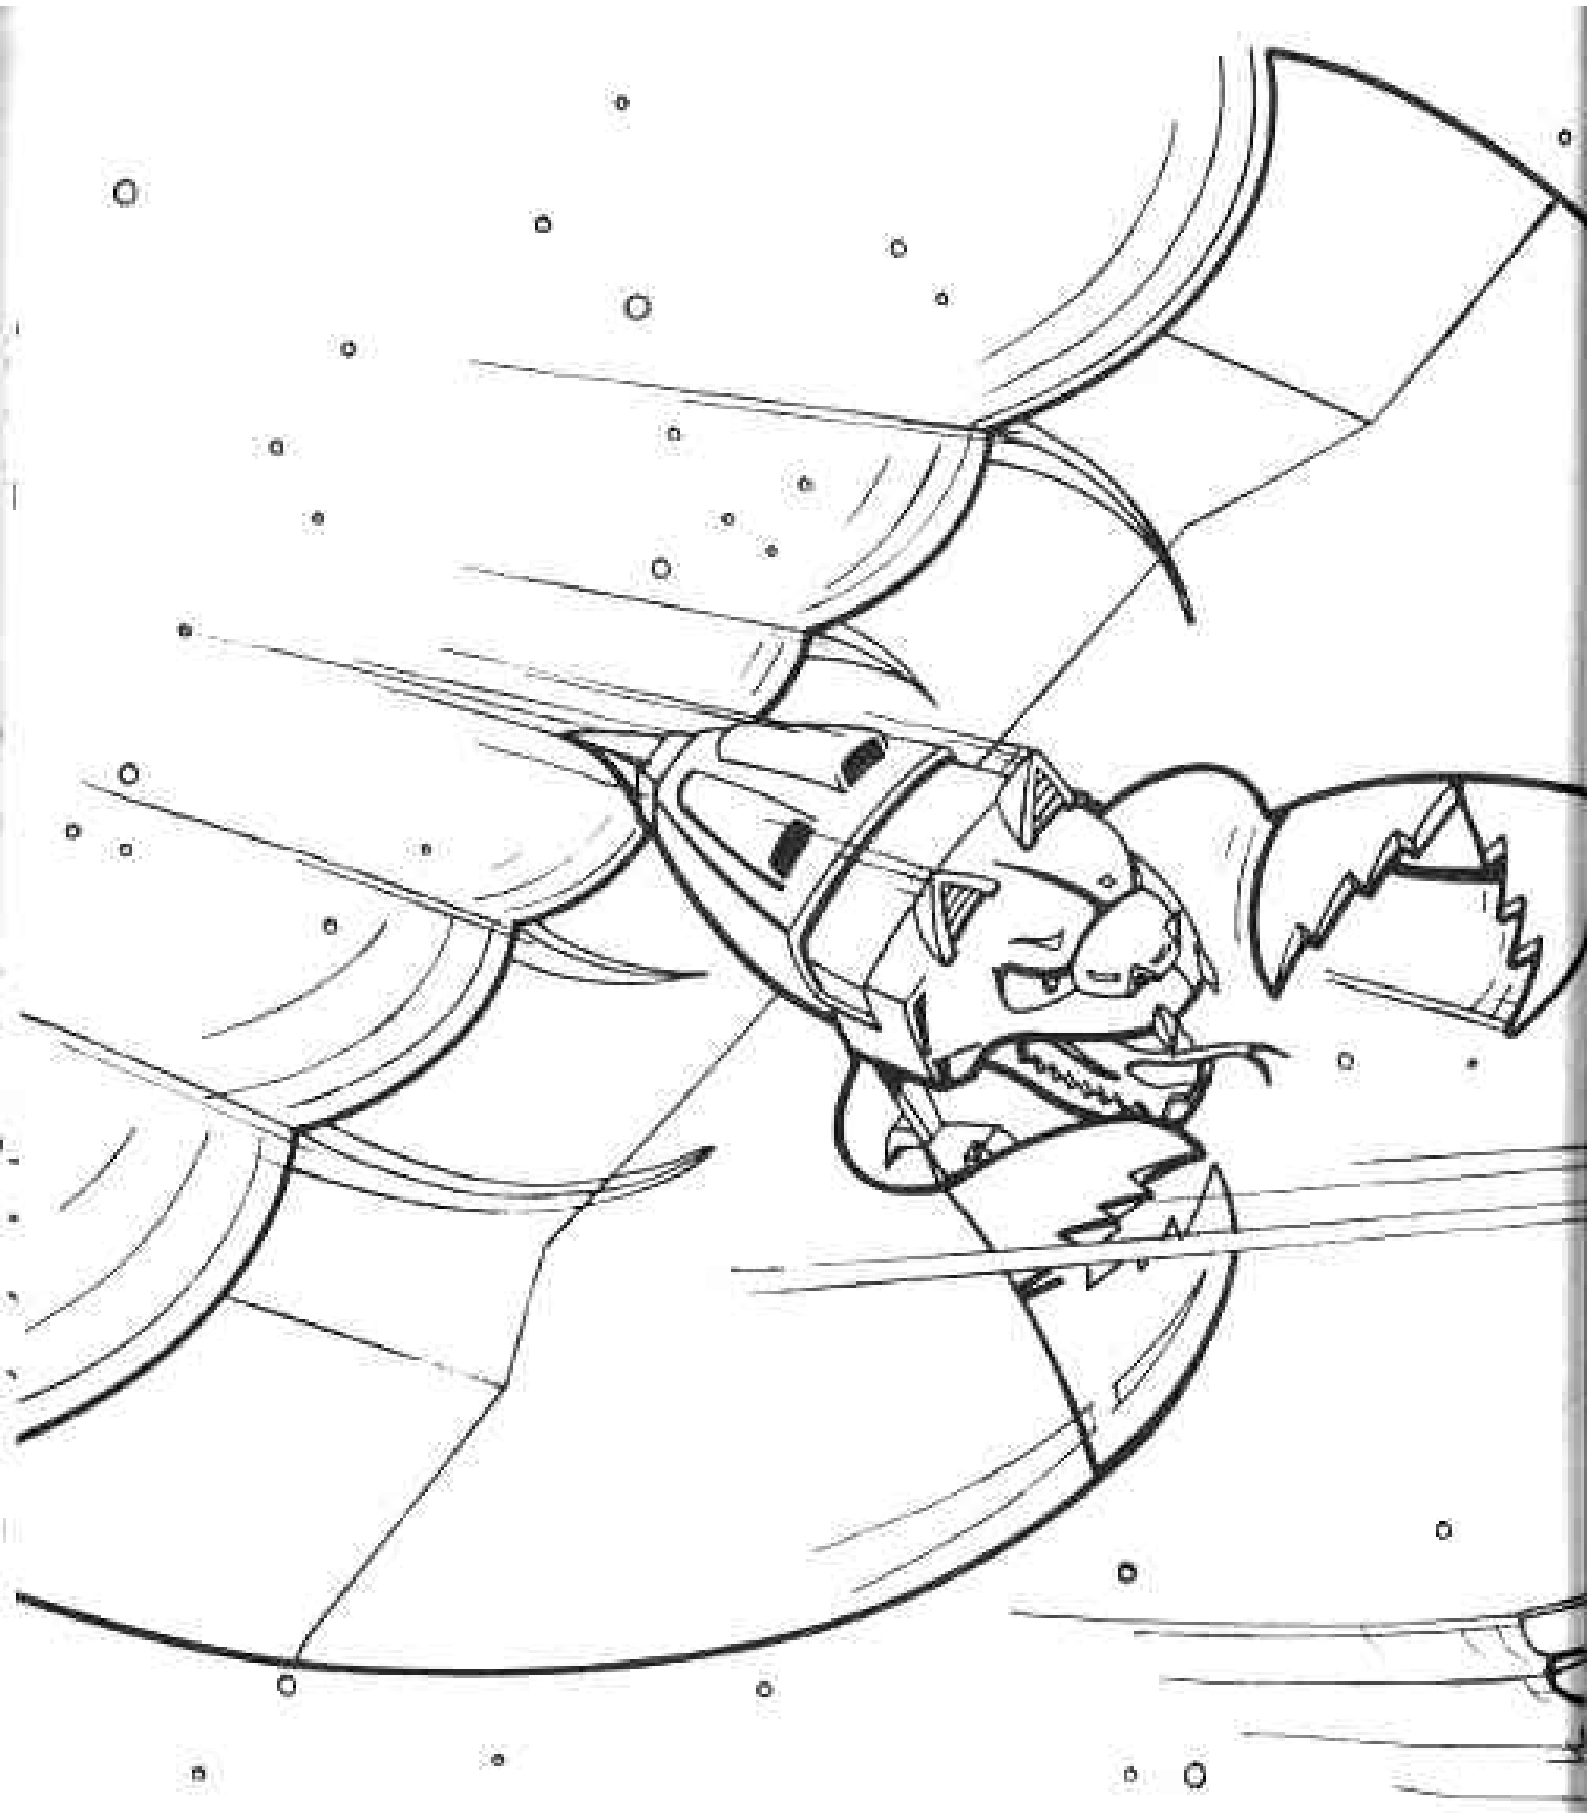


Mon-Star trapped the three SilverHawks in a deadly shrinking cage.

The SilverHawks shorted out the cage with a supercharged laser blast. Then they quickly escaped.

In another room, Hardware showed Mon-Star how to control the Sky-Shadow by computer.





Out in deep space, the Sky-Shadow pursued Tally-Hawk.

Bluegrass, the SilverHawks' pilot, saw the Sky-Shadow seize Tally-Hawk in its steel talons. He strummed his laser guitar and zapped the evil creature with its musical rays.

Tally-Hawk's circuits were badly damaged. But the Copper Kidd performed some fast circuit surgery...

and when the rest of the SilverHawks returned, Tally-Hawk was as good as new.

Back in his fortress, Mon-Star vowed to get even someday.
